Separate tax laws sought for seafarers VISHAKA ZADOO

New Delhi, 21 June

With a more conducive tax regime driving Indian seafarers towards foreign shores, the shipping ministry proposes to ask for a separate tax legislation for Indian seafarers.

The shipping ministry has asked the Indian National Shippers Association to come up with a proposal in this regard, which can be forwarded to the finance ministry.

We would conduct a study of tax regime seafarers have to face in the five top most seafarer suppliers in the world, after which we would be able to come up with a specific proposal,' an Indian National Shippers Association official told Business Standard.

INSA would study countries like the Philippines, Russia, Ukraine, Poland, and China. Indian seafarers prefer foreign vessels as they are exemptedfrom paying any income tax, while if they work on the Indian flag vessels they have to pay tax according to Indian laws. It is only when a seafarer stays outside territorial waters for more than six months that he can claim refunds as a non-resident Indian. INSA sources said that from this vear onwards seafarers would have an additional burden of seeking refunds themselves. According to INSA sources, companies have to file returns after every three months according to the changed rules. Earlier, shipping companies had to file returns at the end of the financial year which meant that if a seafarer worked abroad for six months companies would refund the tax deducted by them at source. With shipping companies now filing the returns quarterly, seafarers would have to seek refund themselves.

"This is expected to cause further inconvenience for seafarers, who now have to go to various income tax offices to collect their refunds," a shipping company executive said.

This is when Indian shipping companies are facing acute shortage of officers to work on board. Of the 18,500 officers of Indian origin, nearly 65 per cent are employed on foreign vessels. India has a shortage of more than 500 officers at present.
