

A bunch of text goes here to demonstrate how the text in a paragraph wraps when it is ensconced to varying amounts under LibreOffice 4.1.0.4 under Macintosh OSX 10.6. This text will be repeated several times with different condensing setting for demonstration purposes.

Not Condensed

A bunch of text goes here to demonstrate how the text in a paragraph wraps when it is ensconced to varying amounts under LibreOffice 4.1.0.4 under Macintosh OSX 10.6. This text will be repeated several times with different condensing setting for demonstration purposes.

Condensed 0.5 points

Notice how the text should be wrapping to an earlier line as space has been created, particularly the "a" on the second line

A bunch of text goes here to demonstrate how the text in a paragraph wraps when it is ensconced to varying amounts under LibreOffice 4.1.0.4 under Macintosh OSX 10.6. This text will be repeated several times with different condensing setting for demonstration purposes.

Condensed 1.0 points

This shows an even more extreme version of it.

A bunch of text goes here to demonstrate how the text in a paragraph wraps when it is ensconced to varying amounts under LibreOffice 4.1.0.4 under Macintosh OSX 10.6. This text will be repeated several times with different condensing setting for demonstration purposes.

Not condensed, justified

Here you see a justified alignment version of the paragraph to demonstrate that there are not line breaks between the different lines

A bunch of text goes here to demonstrate how the text in a paragraph wraps when it is ensconced to varying amounts under LibreOffice 4.1.0.4 under Macintosh OSX 10.6. This text will be repeated several times with different condensing setting for demonstration purposes.

Condensed 1.0 justified

Note how when justified only the last line of a paragraph looks consed, while the other lines are stretched to fill the entire line since they aren't wrapping.