A Title

A Table

Column 1 Heading	Column 2 Heading
Column 1 width was set to 25%	Column 2 width was set to 30%

Comments:

The table's column widths were set to 25%, 30% and 45% before the document was saved for the first time and then closed.

After the initial save and close, the document was re-opened and the table's column widths were 45% and 55%; with the third column missing altogether.

The above is but one example of the problem. It more frequently happens that the first two columns get reset to something like 5% and the last column to 90%.

If this document is now saved, closed and re-opened the problem will not recur. The fault arises only after it is initially saved, closed and re-opened.
