We have more space to increase the height so that this doesn't feel as cramped

The snippets have a very similar look to each other but the landing page banner has a very different look. Wondering if we can neutralizing the background in the banner by removing the super hexagon background?
