With E10S enabled, these two lines do not print Bold at all (they should be Bold, compared to the non-Bold example on the left)

* These two fonts do not have a Bold-face font in their font families

* The Times New Roman font on the bottom line has a Bold-face font in its font family, so it is not affected by this E10S/Bold-Printing bug.

* Screen rendering and Print Preview both correctly render the Bold attribute, independent of E10S (only Printing has the bug)
