

Firefox Marketplace Developer Dashboard:

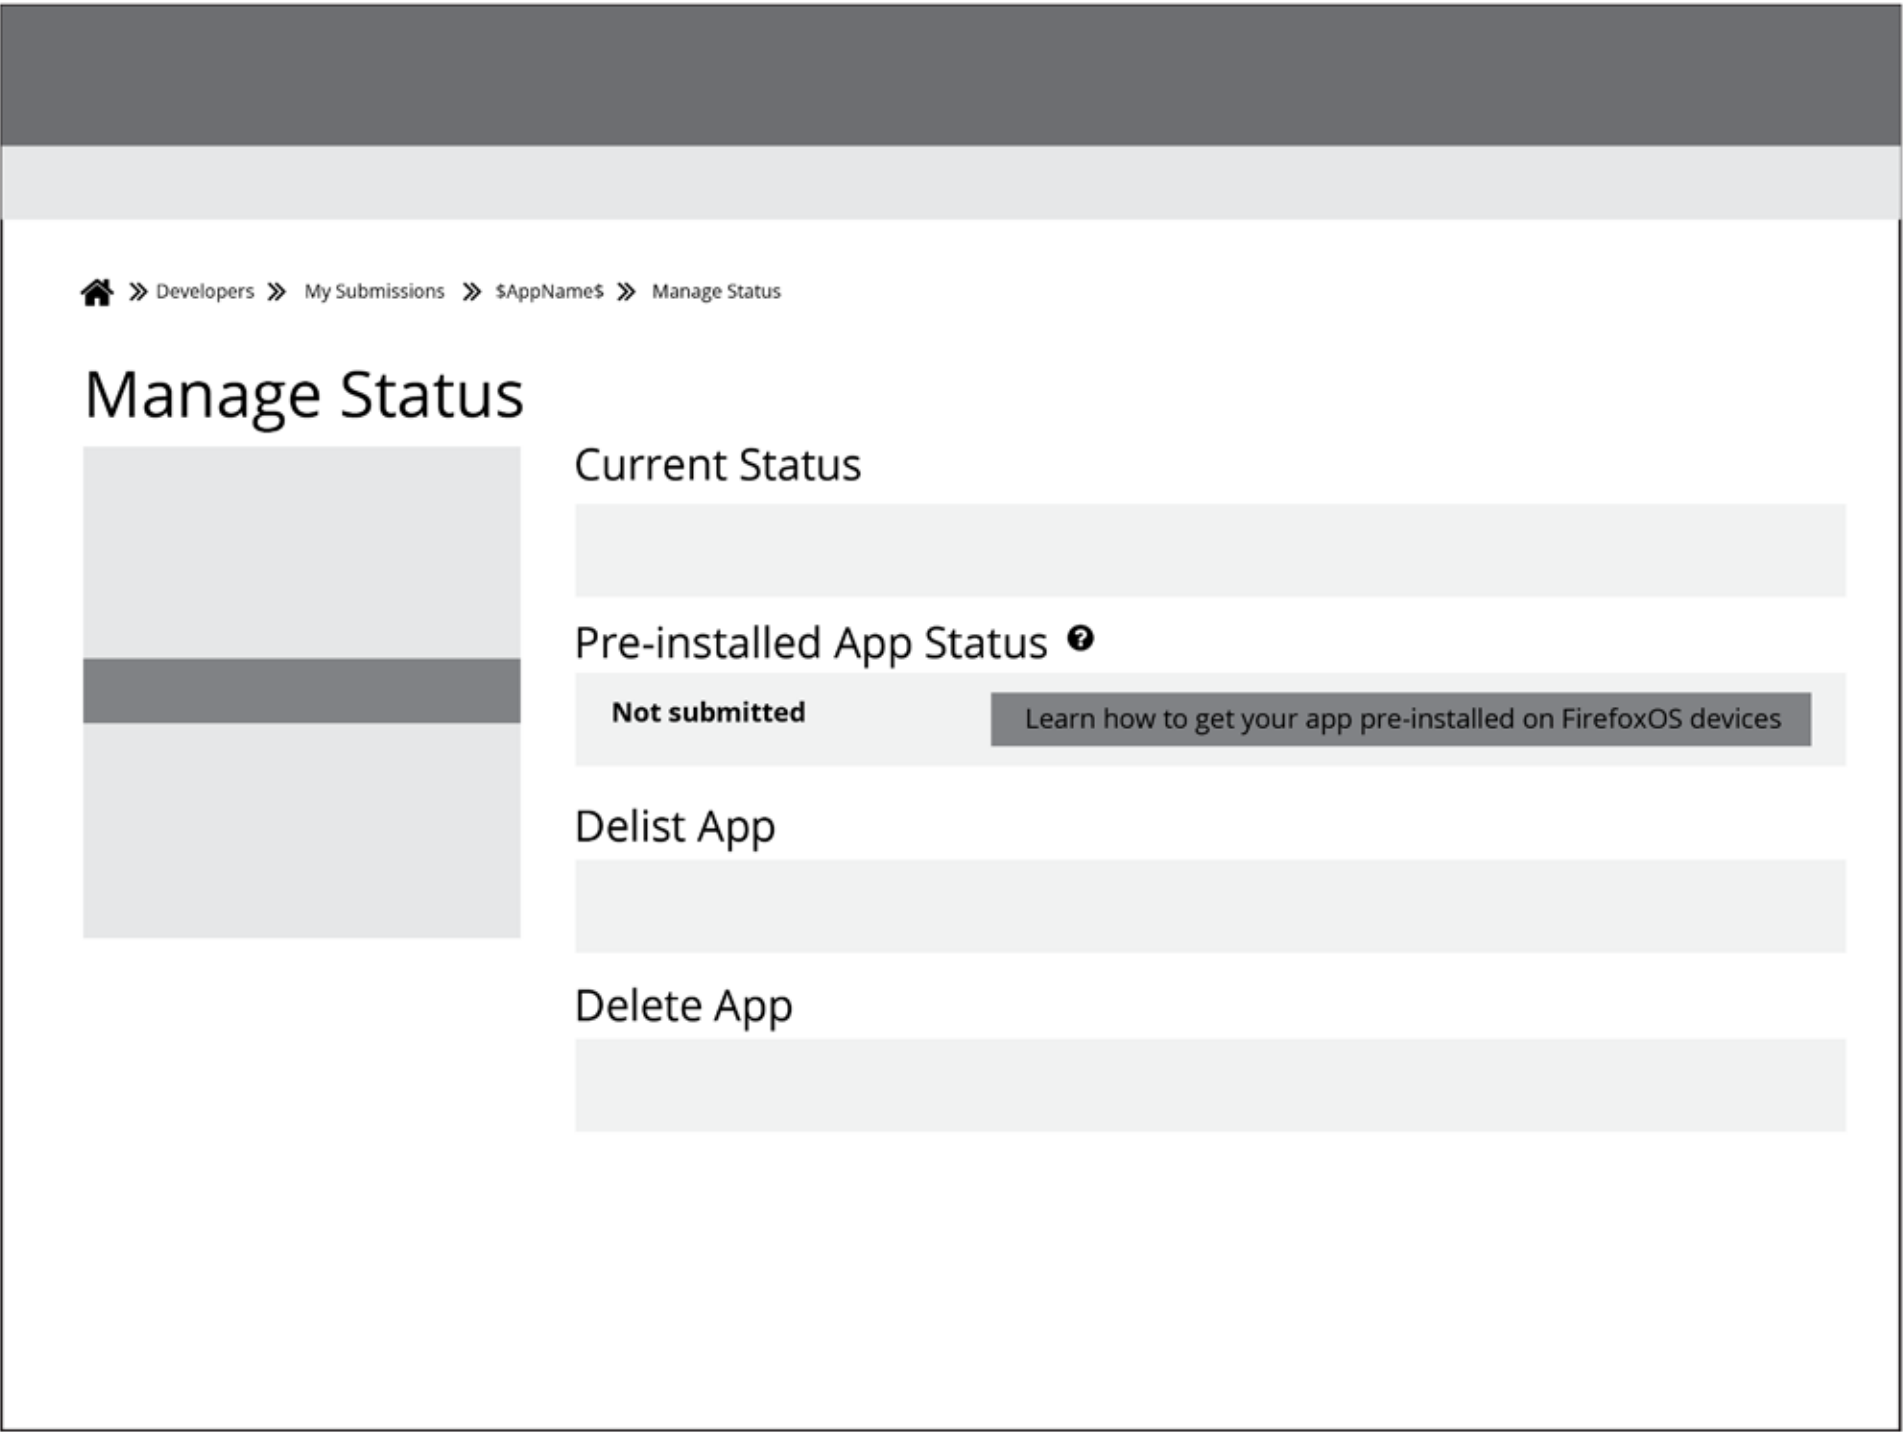

Pre-installed app submission

Developer flow

Operator flow

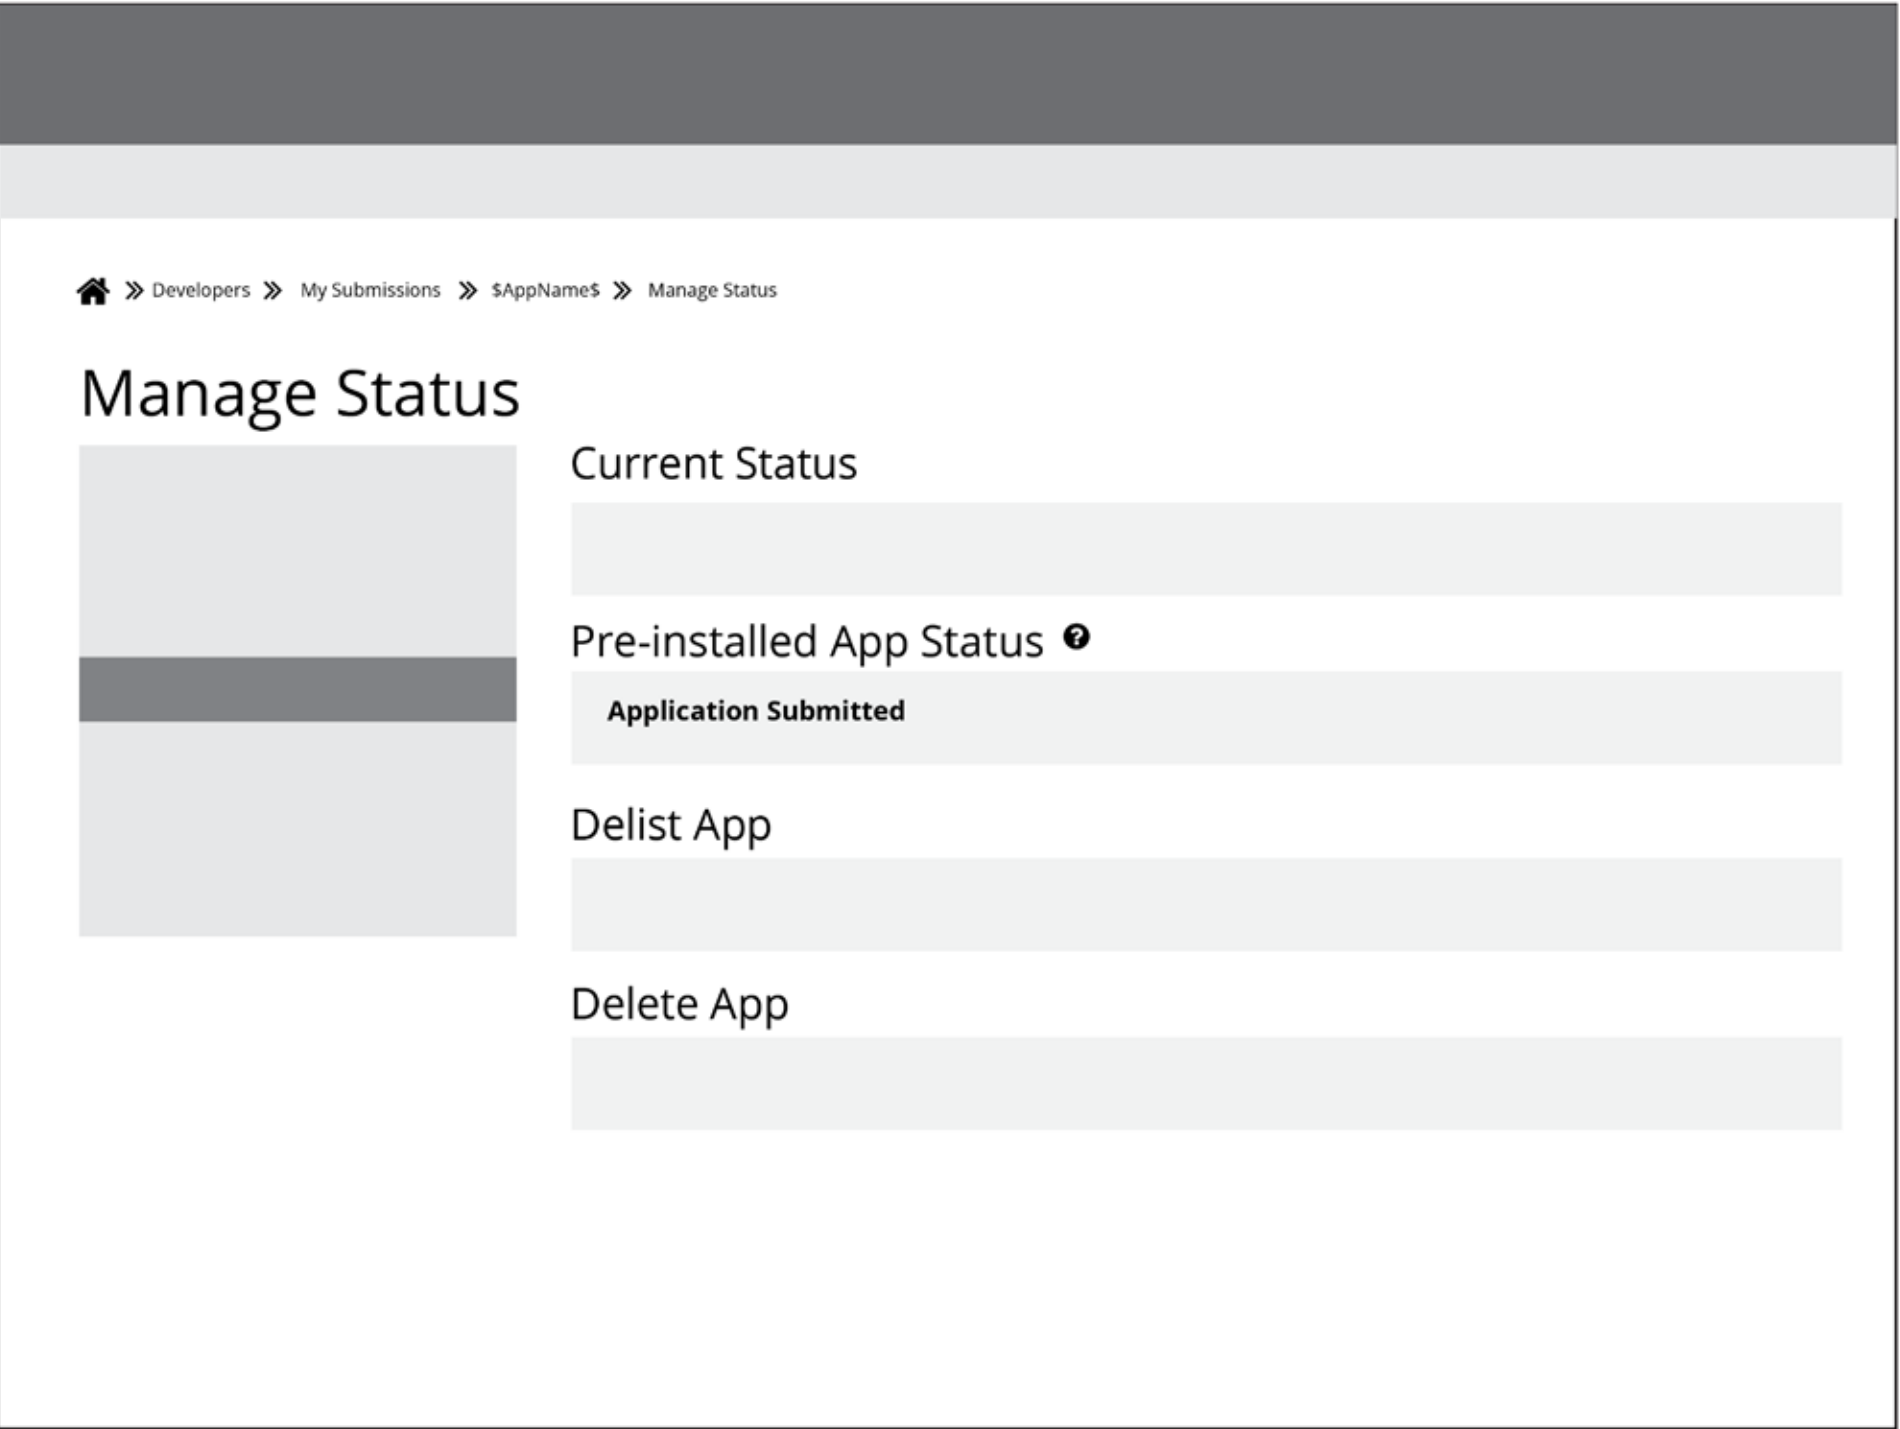

To be addressed by UX in Q4 with Operator Dashboard work

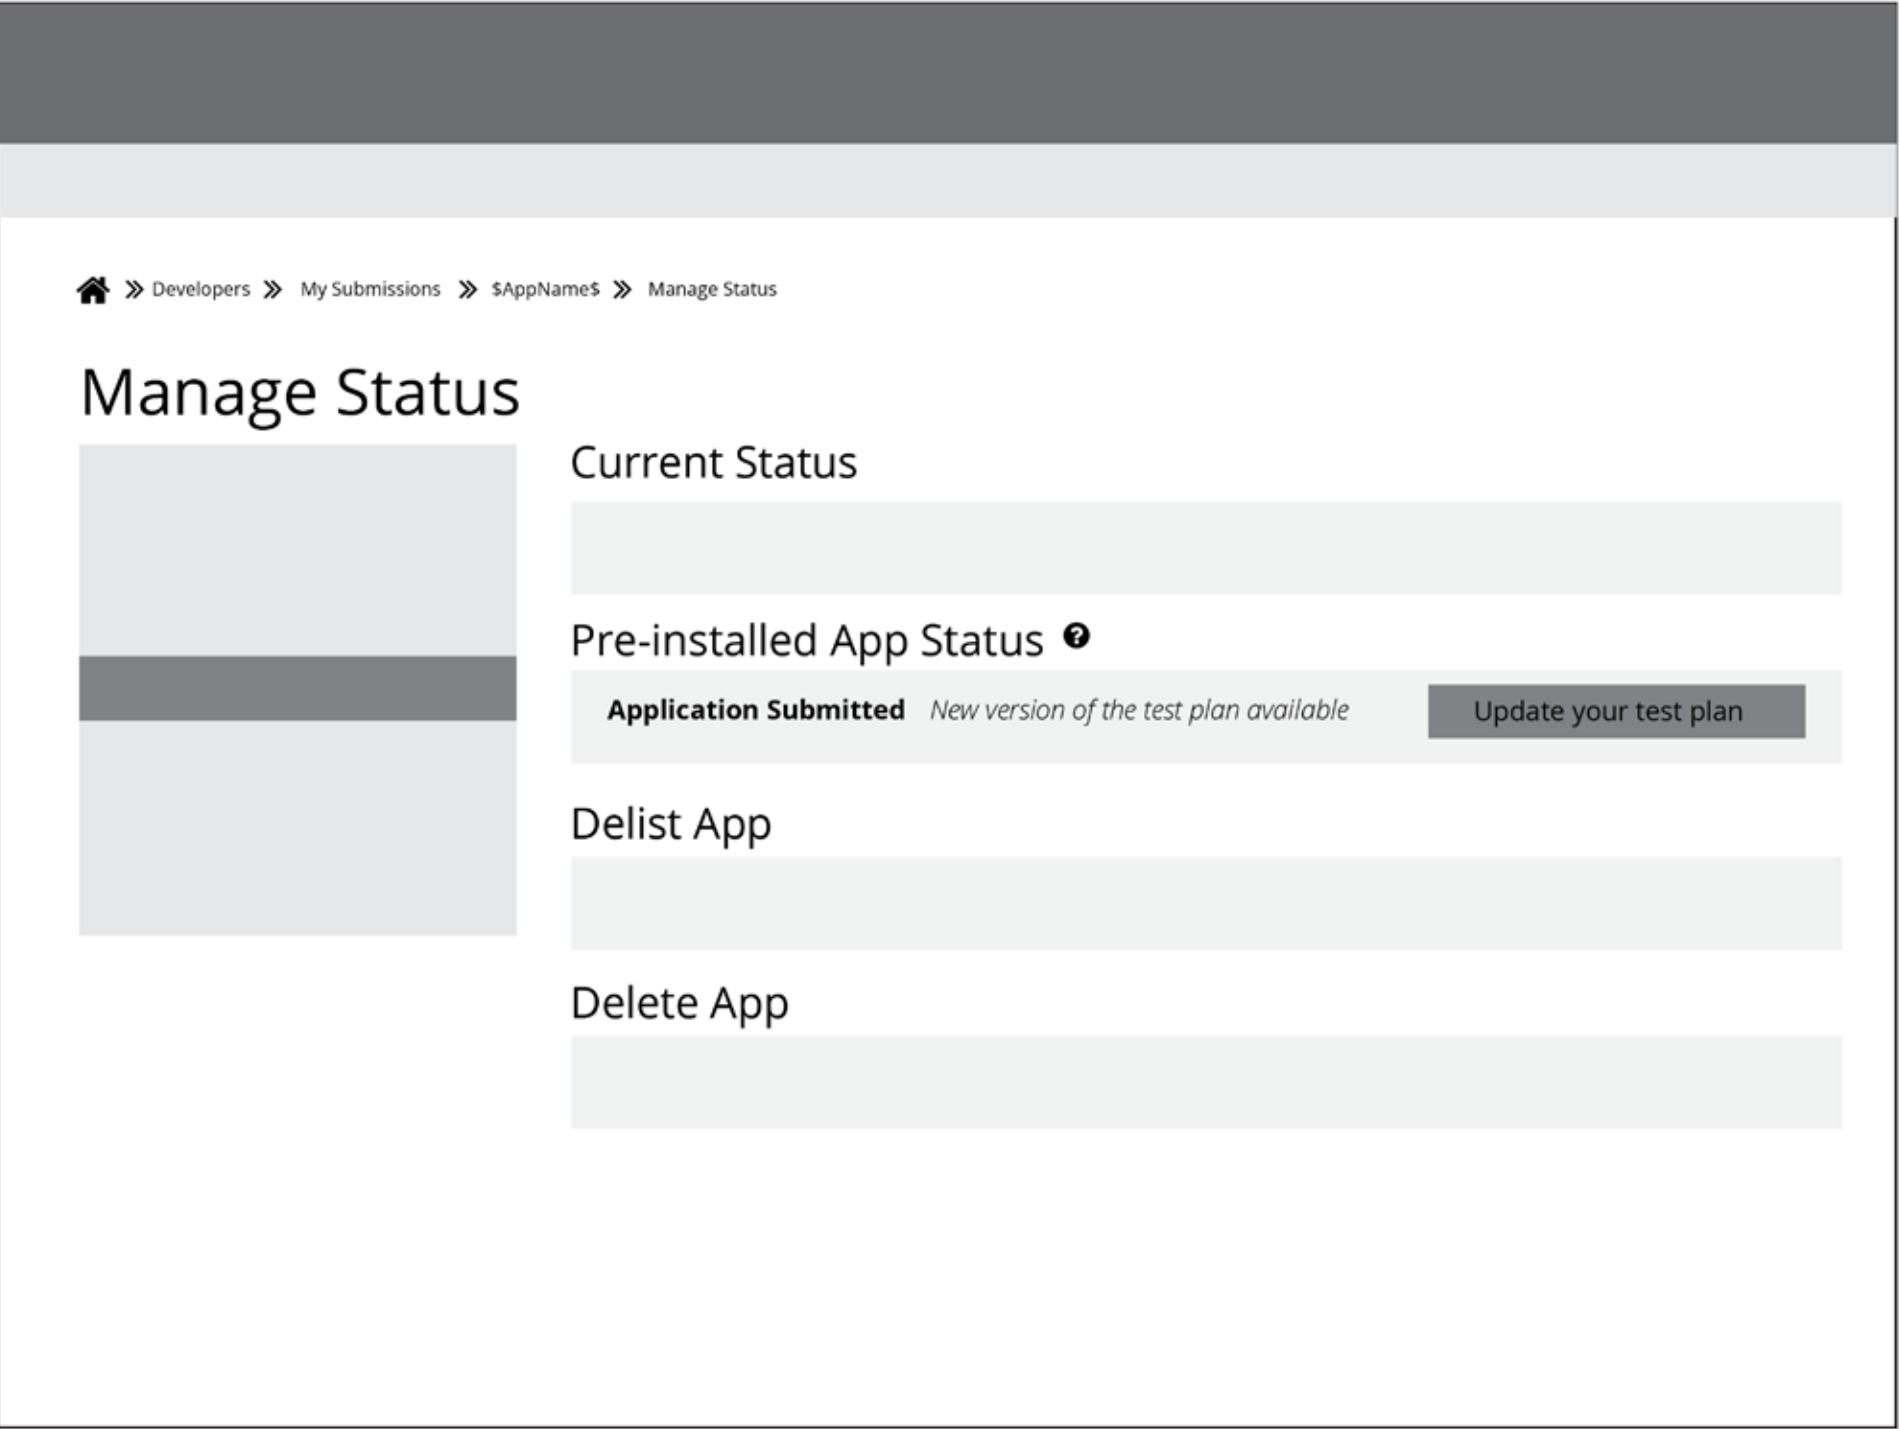

Developers who want to submit their app for consideration as a pre-installed app can find the links to do it and track the progress of their review in the Manage Status tab, along side the Marketplace review information and their options for delisting and deleting their app from the Marketplace. This is where this information will always “live,” although we will point to it from the end of the Marketplace submission flow as well.

This screen will show one of three status messages: Not submitted, Application Submitted, and Update available.

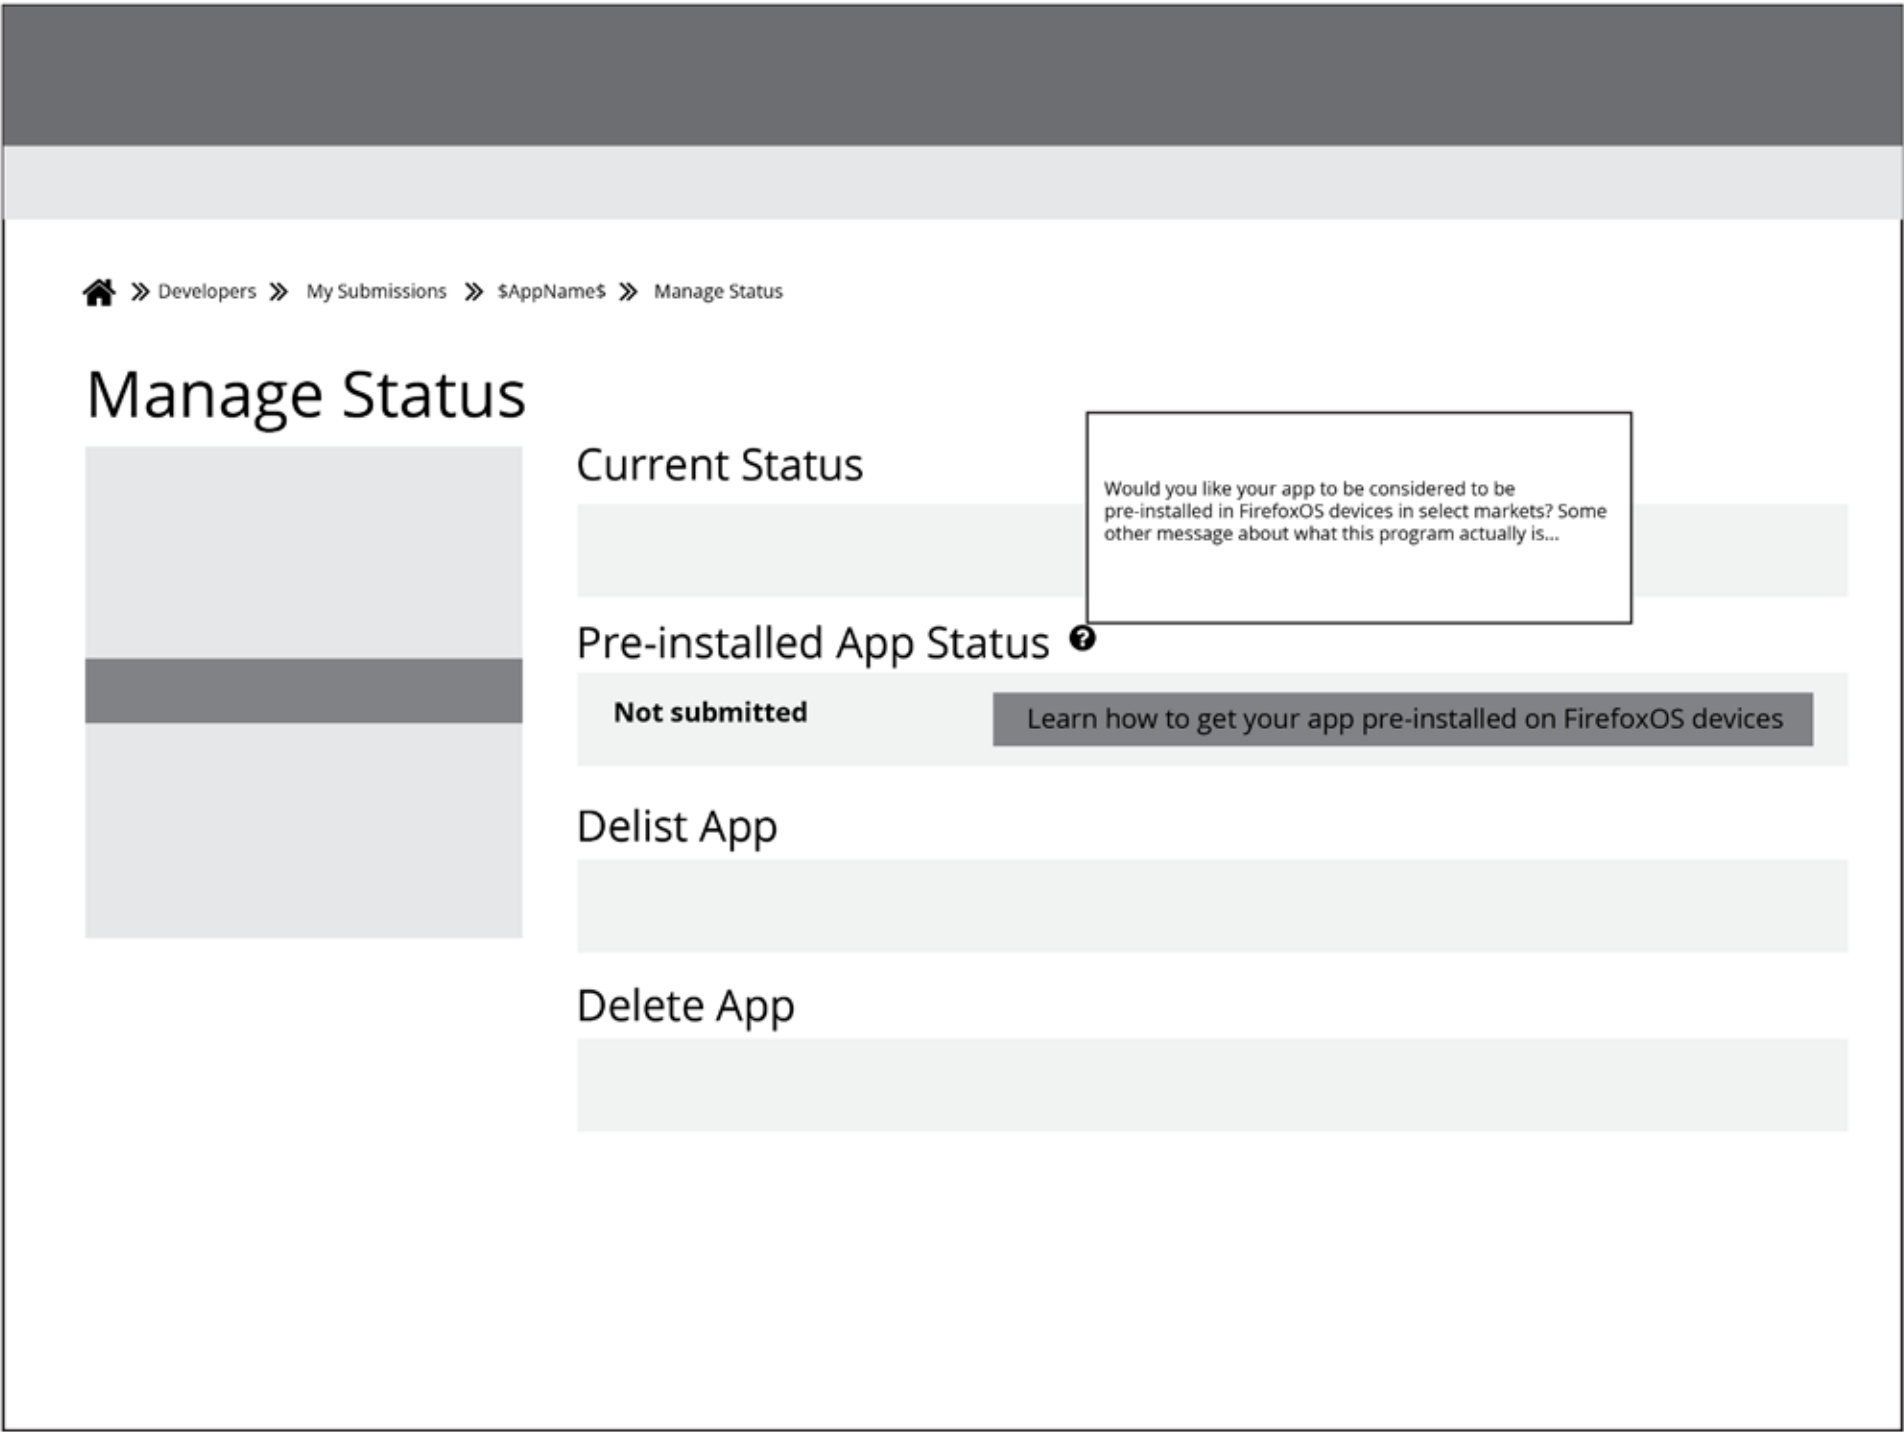

For the Not Submitted status, a button will offer “learn more” button which will take the user to a screen with more info and options to submit. The update available status will offer a “update your test plan” button.

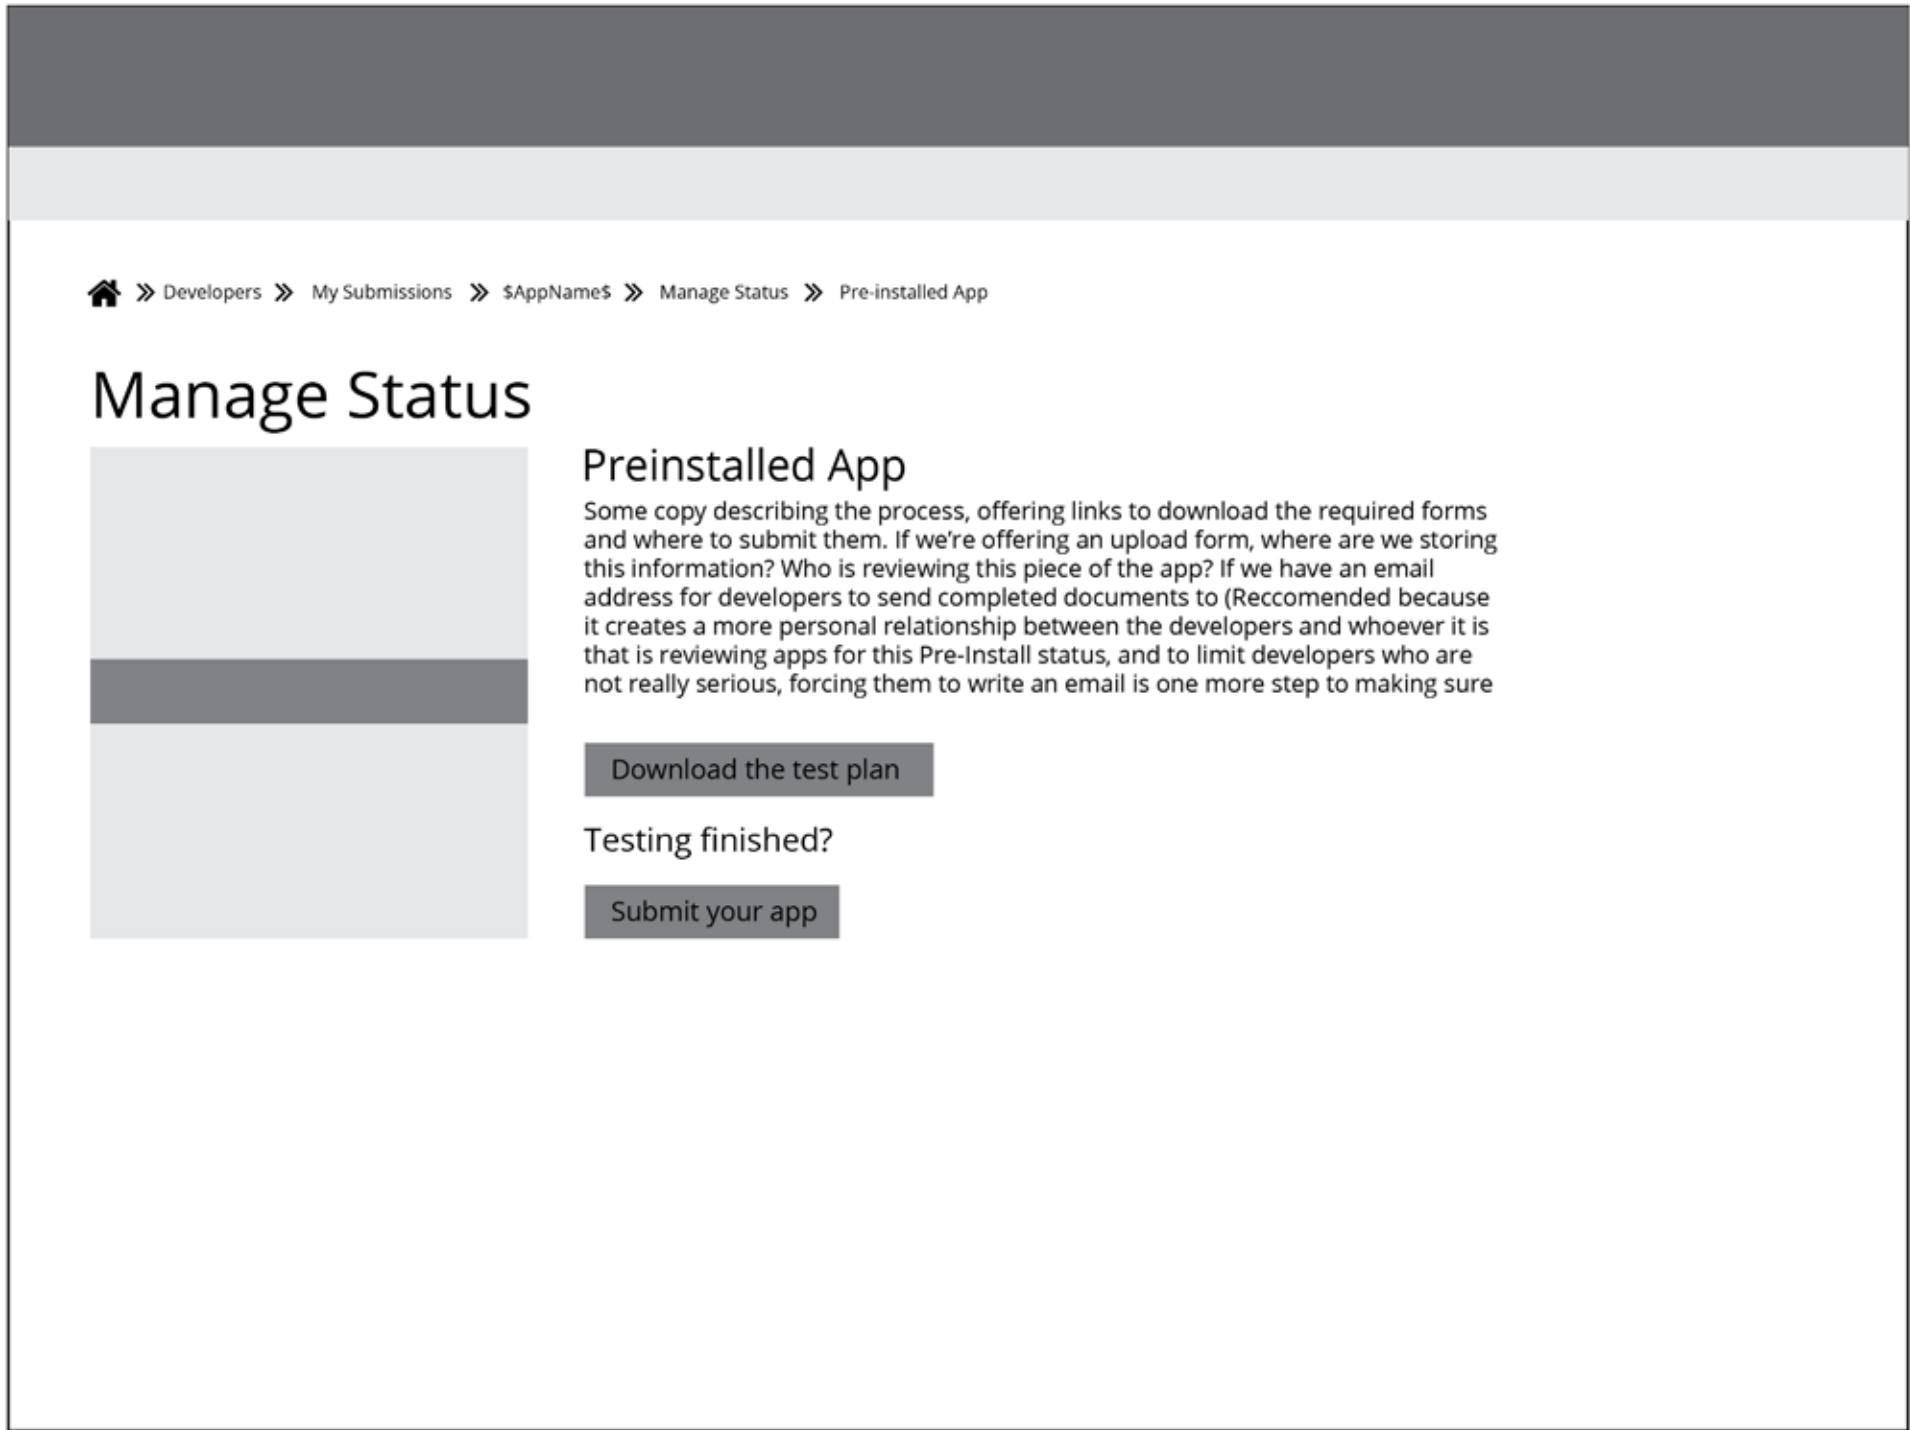

For the Submitted status, only a message is shown to users.

For the update available status, a message is shown and an update button is shown. Clicking the button goes directly to the Ts&Cs page with the upload and submission links.

A question icon is provided to quickly answer “what is this thing?” We need some quick copy to explain pre-installed status. This copy could also be used at the end of the submission flow to advertise this new addition to the Marketplace

Clicking the “Learn more” button takes the user to a page where more info on the Pre-installed apps program is explained, the test plan is offered by a download button, and a link to submit the test plan is offered.

The current Manage Status screen, for visual design reference. Please note that there are efforts underway to bring the developer dashboard in-line with the visual styling of the consumer facing Marketplace pages, so this feature's visual design will change to reflect those changes by the end of the year.
