In just 22 months we conceived of, developed, tested and shipped Firefox OS in four global markets, with six more to go by year's end. Few would argue that this is an accomplishment nothing short of extraordinary.

It is with the greatest pleasure that we invite you to join your fellow Mozillians — all of whom played (and continue to play) an important role in unleashing the fox — for a celebratory dinner in your honor.

The Web is where it is today because of you.
