Comments:

I signed up with Chase cc with 0% interest rate for 18 mo. After nine months I receive my bill and notice interest and late fee on the bill. I called to find out why and they tell me they received my payment late which voids the agreement of 0% interest. I was relying on the 0% interest to get some bills paid off. I was feareous with them for this action. This must have been one of these hidden in the small prints that I total did not see or read. They know that and thats where they take advantage of you. I have good credit and always pay my bills on time. How do I know they did not process my payment late just to get me out of this 0% interest rate. I am still steaming about this. I will pay this card off and not do business with them any more. Truly a sleazy way to do business. CHASE credit card
