(U) Background Paper for the Chairman, JCS, concerning ATTAIN DOCUMENT IIB Notice of Intent (NOI).

I. (U) SUBJECT. NAS SIGONELLA NOI 280804Z FEB 86 (U)

II. (U) MAJOR POINTS

A. [u] [TS] ATTAIN DOCUMENT IIB operations in the Tripoli FIR were originally planned for the period of 1 to 4 March 1986. The USCINCEUR Concept of Operations for ATTAIN DOCUMENT IIB was briefed to the Joint Chiefs of Staff 25 February 1986 in anticipation of approval for the Execute Order. The Concept of Operations included the filing of an NOI 48 hours in advance of flight operations. If the Execute Order had been approved, the NOI would have been filed NLT 262359Z for operations 1 to 4 March 1986 as planned.

B. [u] [TS] The result of the 25 February ATTAIN DOCUMENT IIB briefing was the 27 February request to SecDef (Tab A) for cancellation of the planned 1 to 4 March operations. Upon a favorable reply from SecDef on 28 February the ATTAIN DOCUMENT IIB cancellation order was transmitted at 280015Z FEB 86. (Tab B)

C. [u] [TS] CTF-60 in anticipation of conducting ATTAIN DOCUMENT IIB operations filed a pro-forma NOI 280445Z FEB 86, which was transmitted into ICAO channels by NAS SIGNONELLA at 280804Z FEB 86 (TAB C). Upon receipt of the cancellation 28 Feb, planned flight operations in the Tripoli FIR were not conducted and both CORAL SEA and SARATOGA proceeded to port calls in Naples, IT and Malaga, SP respectively.

BRIEFING FOR

FOR MG SHAHAK, ISRAELI DIRECTOR FOR MILITARY INTELLIGENCE, 20 MAY 1986

Good afternoon, sir. I am [REDACTED] Current Operations, J-3, JCS

Provide overview of the raid to provide a background for Intel briefings and discussions.

(u) The mission was to conduct simultaneous night strikes against five directed targets. Specifically, the raid was to damage/destroy combat swimmer school at Murrat Sidi Bilal terrorist-training facility, damage/destroy Qadhafi's terrorism HQ and C³ apparatus at Azziziyah as well as the Jamahiriyah Guard Barracks at Banghazi, and protect the striking US forces from Libyan air threat while damaging Libya's IL-76 power/logistics projection capability.

(u) The general concept of operations was to use F-111Fs from Great Britain against the three western-most targets in Tripoli; that is, the Sidi Bilal Training Facility, the Aziziyah Barracks and Headquarters, and the Tripoli

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

Military Airport; and on the eastern targets, A-6Es from the USS CORAL SEA and USS AMERICA were scheduled against Benina Air Base and the Benghazi Barracks and Alternate Headquarters. Tactical support was to be provided by aircraft from the two carriers and KC-10s and EF-111s launched from Great Britain. Staging the F-111s closer was not considered a realistic option since third country diplomatic clearance would be required. This presented an OPSEC problem eliminating the element of surprise and increasing the risk to striking forces. Lack of overflight rights for the F-111s complicated planning and execution but was within operational parameters. Due to the long range (2800 nm, one way), the mission required additional tanker aircraft to be deployed to the UK. Additional spare F-111s were planned in case of avionics failures during the long flight. The most experienced, trained, formed crews were chosen for the mission.

[REDACTED]

(u) Of the aircraft attacking the Aziziyah Barracks, there was one F-111 that did not return, he apparently went down off the coast about four miles north of Tripoli. There was an immediate SAR initiated which continued for a day and a half after the aircraft was reported lost, with no indication either visual or electronic that anyone had survived.

(u) The effectiveness/coordination of the Air Force and Naval forces has been assessed as superb. Perhaps the most telling fact is the exact on time TOT by forces based 3000 miles apart. A very complex joint strike plan successfully integrated strike and strike-support (ECM, C3CM, EW, CAP, SAR) air and naval forces. The aircrews, as the primary strike planners, were given the flexibility to develop attack plans and force packages. Each target area had several desired target elements (aim points). The selection of aim points and munitions was left to the crews attacking that target area.

[REDACTED]

(u) Sir, unless you have any operational questions, specific EDA and Libyan reactions will now be covered by my colleagues from DIA.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE SECRETARY OF DEFENSE

SUBJECT: Mediterranean Operations (U)

1. ^u(S) During the past several months, elements of EUCOM have operated inside the Tripoli FIR on two separate occasions. During the period 23-29 March, EUCOM will conduct a deliberate Freedom of Navigation challenge below 32 degrees 30 minutes North using both air and surface elements. This FON challenge will involve elements of three carrier battle groups and will be deliberately planned and executed.

2. ^u(S) In the intervening period between 27 February and 23 March, the Chiefs recommend that the EUCOM Commander be given maximum flexibility in conducting operations off the coast of Libya with the following constraints:

a. No Freedom of Navigation challenge will be conducted during this period nor will any elements of the force operate south of 32 degrees 30 minutes North.

b. The decision to file a Notification of Intent (NOI) will be left to the EUCOM Commander.

c. All elements of the EUCOM force are authorized to operate within the Tripoli FIR at the discretion of the EUCOM Commander.

d. Normal peacetime Rules of Engagement will apply, with the addition of the following three ROE:

These are the same ROE which have been in effect for the previous two FIR operations.

3. ^u~~(TS)~~ CINCEUR will continue to be prepared to conduct retaliatory operations against Libya within 48 hours of an execute order in response to either linkable terrorist acts or hostile acts of aggression committed against US forces.

4. ^u~~(TS)~~ Request approval of the above as soon as possible.

SITUATION. LIBYA, SINCE THE 27 DECEMBER 1985 TERRORIST ATTACKS AT THE ROME AND VIENNA INTERNATIONAL AIRPORTS, HAS ESCALATED TENSIONS WITH THE US. VERBAL ATTACKS HAVE RECENTLY ESCALATED TO INCLUDE THREATS OF TERRORIST ACTIVITIES DIRECTED AGAINST THE US AND EUROPEAN ALLIES. ADDITIONALLY, ON 13 JANUARY LIBYA CONDUCTED A MIG-23 INTERCEPT OF AN UNARMED US EA-38 SURVEILLANCE AIRCRAFT CONDUCTING ROUTINE OPERATIONS OUTSIDE THE TRIPOLI FLIGHT INFORMATION REGION. ATTAIN DOCUMENT PRESENCE OPERATIONS, CONDUCTED WITH TWO CVBGs IN THE TRIPOLI FIR 24-31 JAN 86, APPEAR TO HAVE HAD SOME MODERATING IMPACT ON THE GOVERNMENT OF LIBYA. HOWEVER, LIBYA DOES CONTINUE TO PERSIST IN ILLEGALLY CLAIMING INTERNATIONAL WATERS AND AIRSPACE IN THE GULF OF SIDRA SOUTH OF 32-30 NORTH AS INTERNAL WATERS AND AIRSPACE.
MISSION. CONTINUE TO DEMONSTRATE US RESOLVE AND CAPABILITY AGAINST LIBYA. USCINCEUR WILL CONDUCT OPERATIONS TO KEEP LIBYAN ARMED FORCES UNCERTAIN AS TO US INTENTIONS AND SIGNAL LIBYAN, EUROPEAN, AND ARAB OBSERVERS THAT THE US HAS THE RESOLVE AND CAPABILITY TO CONDUCT MILITARY STRIKES IF NECESSARY. FURTHER, FOR ATTAIN DOCUMENT IIA AND IIB: CONDUCT AIR AND SURFACE PRESENCE OPERATIONS IN THE TRIPOLI FIR NORTH OF 32-30N. FOR ATTAIN DOCUMENT III: CONDUCT FREEDOM OF NAVIGATION OPERATIONS SOUTH OF 32-30N IN THE GULF OF SIDRA TO CHALLENGE ILLEGAL LIBYAN CLAIMS OF INTERNAL WATERS AND AIRSPACE.

SUBJECT: Libya's Attack Capability (U)

1. (U) PURPOSE: Response to JSJ Tasking 008.
2. (U) MAJOR POINTS:

- ~~(S)~~^u To some extent the lack of air and naval activity is a result of bad weather. A further factor with regard to air assets is the emphasis on air defense which has restricted air operations. An attempt to limit possible losses is probably also a factor.

(U) Background Paper for the Chairman, JCS

I. (U) Subject. Search and Rescue (SAR)

II. ^u~~(TS)~~ Background. SAR requirements and planning will be refined in detail by EUCOM. The responsibility for SAR at sea and ashore will be shared by USN and USAF assets. MARG assets may be utilized if positioned appropriately.

III. ^u~~(TS)~~ Key Points

- USAF SAR unit - 67 ARRS.
 - Stationed at RAF Woodbridge, UK.
 - Five HH-53B (air refuelable and armored).
 - Five HC-130 (tanker/command and control).
 - Crews are qualified for night SAR with night vision goggles.
 - HH-53s routinely deploy from UK to Sigonella and Aviano. Diplomatic clearance and approval would be required.
- HH-53H - PAVE LOW III.
 - No significant advantage over HH-53B for SAR.
 - Primary advantage over HH-53B is night navigation systems for deep insertion/exfiltration.
 - USEUCOM has previously indicated that he did not require the PAVE LOW aircraft for SAR.
 - Stationed at Hurlburt AFB, FL.

- Navy SAR.

-- Two SH3 from HC9 - primary mission combat SAR.

--- Currently deployed to the Sixth Fleet.

--- Aircraft are armored.

--- Crews are qualified for night SAR with night vision goggles.

--- Not air-refuelable - can be refueled in hover off stern of ship.

-- Other Navy helos have limited overwater SAR capability.

- SAR general.

-- Some USAF SAR pilots are deck qualified for shipboard recovery, if necessary. HH-53B and H do not have folding rotors.

[REDACTED]

-- Response time can be shortened if SAR aircraft are on airborne alert off shore Libya during TOT (OPSEC is a consideration if this option is exercised). MARG aircraft can be utilized if positioned appropriately.

-- Fighter CAP required.

-- Water pick-up's are preferable if crews can get "feet wet."

-- Overland rescue high risk both day or night.

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

~~_____~~
IV. ^u(TS) Bottom Line. Recovery at sea with fighter cap has high probability of success. Overland rescue may not be possible due to the threat. (As an example, SAR from downtown Hanoi was virtually impossible.)

V. ^u(TS) Recommendation. Support deployment of 67 ARRS from the United Kingdom to support operation if USCINCEUR desires. Do not recommend deployment of PAVE LOW.

Point Paper for Information

I. SUBJECT: Responses to Congressional Questions (U)

II. MAJOR POINTS

A. Operational Planning.

Q. Who was responsible for the planning?

(U) JCS and USCINCEUR using the procedures of Crisis Action System (CAS) contained in Volume IV of the Joint Operation Planning System (JOPS).

-When did planning for this or other Libyan contingencies begin?
Why?

- What organizations participated in the planning?

- JCS/EUCOM interface?

(U) Excellent at all levels. Included face-to-face liaison at staff and command levels; including discussions between SecDef and VADM Kelso.

INTERNAL STAFF PAPER
RELEASE COVERED BY JCS MOP 39

Classified by Director, J-3
Declassify on OADR

[REDACTED]

- Role of EUCOM components, if any?

(U) As the forces which would execute the strike, they developed the primary, detailed plans.

- How was planning conducted with political leadership?

 OCJCS/OAsstCJCS

- How was Air Force/Navy coordination effected?

(U) In addition to the coordination inherent in the unified staff at HQ USEUCOM, liaison officers were exchanged among the planning locations.

Q. What was the primary concept of operations?

(U) Simultaneous night strike against five NCA-directed targets to ensure the elements of surprise, mass, and saturation of enemy defenses.

- What were the principal objectives of this operation?

(U) Response to the American deaths resulting from the Libyan bombing of a West Berlin disco; demonstration of US resolve and capability against Qadhafi-sponsored terrorism, and weakening of Qadhafi's ability to control worldwide terrorism from Libya.

- What did the raid seek to accomplish?

[REDACTED]

- What was the organizational structure and chain of command?

(U) Secretary of Defense through the JCS to USCINCEUR to Commander, Central Mediterranean Operations.

- Concept for C³?

^u
(TS) USCINCEUR designated COMSIXTHFLT as the officer in tactical command (OTC) and Commander, Central Mediterranean Operations (COMCENTMEDOPS), to coordinate detailed joint planning /deconfliction efforts, to integrate other command/agency assets into the tactical operations area, and to conduct operations set forth for this operation. USCINCEUR delineated the area of the CENTMED in which COMCENTMED had this authority.

Q. How were options formulated and analyzed?

(U) Following CAS procedures, the guidance, objectives, and direction given to SecDef/JCS were passed to CINCEUR and his components. From this, USCINCEUR and the executing forces developed feasible military options to support the mission. These plans (options) were reviewed, modified, and revised at successive levels of command through JCS to the Secretary and the President.

- Were off-the-shelf contingency plans used?

(U) Yes, as a point of departure for developing the detailed strike plans against specific targets.

- How many options were examined and by whom?

- Were the options mutually exclusive in scope? (e.g. military vs. economic objectives or did they overlap?)

Q. Who made the choice of the options used and why?

(U) The President approved recommendations of the CINC/JCS/SecDef.

- To what extent did military and civilian leadership interact?

OCJCS/OAsstCJCS

Q. Intelligence input to decision making.

- Overall quality.

[Redacted]

- What did we know about actual terrorist connections for the targets chosen?

[Redacted]

- What did we know about Col Qadhafi's whereabouts at the time of the attack?

[Redacted]

- What specific sources were used in establishing the target list?

[Redacted]

- What did we know about occupancy of the targets?

[Redacted]

Q. What were the rules of engagement used?

~~_____~~

- Why were they chosen?

- What was the estimate of their effects?

(U) ROE were appropriate.

Q. How was the raid composition chosen?

- Why were F-111s chosen?

(U) Unique capabilities to conduct a long-range, high payload, night, low-level mission delivering precision-guided munitions.

~~_____~~

[REDACTED]

- Who made the choice?

(U) The President approved recommendation of the CINC/JCS/SecDef.

- Was there any attempt to bring the Air Force in even if not operationally warranted?

(U) No

- Why not beef up the carriers with more A-6s?

[REDACTED]

- Could P-111s have been staged anywhere closer?

(U) Yes, with third country diplomatic clearance. However, this would present another OPSEC problem since a deployment of a force this size would have likely eliminated the element of surprise. This would greatly have increased the risk to striking forces.

- What was the effect of lack of overflight rights on the decision process?

[REDACTED]

- Was normal unit integrity considered/maintained?

^u
(S) Yes, the crews were all dedicated formed crews.

B. Performance.

Q. In general, did the raid do what it set out to do?

YES

- What were the specific results of the raid, target by target, as compared with the objectives?

[REDACTED]

- Analyze the reasons for the difference between objectives and results.

Q. How well did specific systems perform?

(U) Specific data has not yet been received, but indications are that systems performed well within expected, acceptable limits.

- Were any extraordinary preparations made for the operation?

(U) No.

- Compare results with specs and normal experience.

(U) Specific data has not yet been received, but indications are that systems performed well within expected, acceptable limits.

[REDACTED]

Q. Why weren't certain planned targets struck?

Q. Assessment of the efficacy of command arrangements and effectiveness/coordination of the Air Force and Naval forces?

(U) Outstanding/superb. Perhaps the most telling fact is the exact on time TOT by forces based 3000 miles apart. A very complex joint strike plan successfully integrated strike and strike-support (ECM, C3CM, EW, CAP, SAR) air and naval forces.

Q. To what extent did the rules of engagement contribute to the results?

(U) ROE were appropriate and provided the operational latitude to plan and conduct the strike in a tactically sound manner.

- How much flexibility did the crews have during the actual operation?

[REDACTED]

Q. To what extent did efforts to limit collateral damage affect the outcome?

(U) The direction to limit collateral damage was only prudent due to the proximity of civilian housing and facilities. This resulted, however, in a more-difficult, more-demanding mission for the aircrews.

- What was the effect of limitations on aircraft attacks based on systems operability?

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

Q. How much unplanned damage actually occurred and why?

(J) For known BDA see Enclosure.

- To what extent did Libyan SAMs or other non-US weapons contribute to the damage in Tripoli?

^U
[S/NF/WN] Libyan SAMs and other non-US weapons caused damage in Tripoli to an unknown extent. Evidence to support this view was provided by Libyan and international media television footage showing SA-2 and SA-3 SAM booster rockets (purportedly pieces of downed US aircraft) being pulled from wrecked buildings. The SA-2 booster rocket, for example, is 8.5 feet long, 3 feet in diameter, and weighs approximately 1060 lbs after fuel expenditure. Despite the self-destruct feature found on Soviet SAMs, it is not impossible that one or more of the SAM warheads may actually have exploded on impact, causing even more destruction in the immediate area. Finally, it is noted that falling shrapnel from conventional AAA weapons, many of which were observed active during the night of the raid, may have caused additional casualties and/or damage since AAA rounds will explode on contact with the ground if not fused.

Q. To what extent did sophisticated electronics (jamming, ELINT, COMINT, etc.) contribute to the outcome?

- [REDACTED]
- Were the outputs of various sensors coordinated? To what extent would better coordination have helped the mission?

Q. What was the Libyan response to the raid?

- [REDACTED]
- (U) Benina Airfield had runway lights on and radio navigation aids operating at the time of attack.
 - ECM used on F-111s, A-6s, etc?

- [REDACTED]
- SAMS/AAA fired?
- [REDACTED]

Q. What does post attack battle damage assessment reveal?

- SAM sites hit and source of info?

- Actual target damage?

For known BDA, see Enclosure

- Sources of information?

For known BDA, see Enclosure

Q. What deficiencies in intelligence collection and processing show up in the operation?

C. Lessons learned.

Q. If considered a success

- What contributed that should be provided for in the future and why?

(U) The joint system works. The iterative JOPS CAS process allowed everyone involved to understand the objectives and plan accordingly. C³ was clear and understood resulting in a successful execution.

Q. At each level in planning/execution, what did you learn?

Q. What would you do different (in hindsight)? Q. What should someone else do different (in hindsight)?

DRAFT 70

~~0800/8 MAY 1986~~

GIVEN TO HASC
20 MAY 86

Introduction

Good morning. I am [redacted] and this is [redacted]. We were both deeply involved in planning, execution and follow up to the US strikes against Libya on 15 April 1986 - Operation ELDORADO CANYON.

Purpose

This briefing responds to the request on 24 April by the Chairman and the ranking Minority member of the House Armed Services Committee for a report (by 15 May) on the preparations for and conduct of the operation. Both Adm Crowe and Secretary Weinberger have reviewed and approved this briefing. You are reminded that it is TOP SECRET.

Overview

This briefing covers Operation ELDORADO CANYON including background, concept, execution and results.

Background

By way of background I will quickly review events and planning which preceded the 5 April bombing attack at the Labelle Disco in Berlin which resulted in two dead including SGT Ford and 230 injured including 64

Americans. Planning for Libyan contingencies began in 1980. JCS and USCINCEUR were the principal responsible organizations. As a result of a clear Libyan threat to US forces, USCINCEUR was first directed to plan for the protection of US forces from Libyan attack and retaliatory strikes against Libya in August of 1980. This tasking was later recodified in tasking documents in 1983. The specific targeting and force packaging which resulted in the April 15 strikes began on December 28, 1985 following early indications that Libya was behind the terrorist attacks at Rome and Vienna airports. As a consequence, by 5 April numerous contingency plans were on the shelf and they served as a point of departure for developing the detailed strike plans against specific targets.

From January to March, while contingency planning was underway, we conducted a series of operations inside the Tripoli FIR. Then from 23 to 27 March we conducted Freedom of Navigation operations below the 32°30' "Line of Death". Libyan hostile reaction to these operations resulted in the sinking of two Libyan patrol craft and attacks on SAM sites at Sirte. The FIR and FDI OPS also enabled us to exercise our Command and Control systems and liaison so that by 14 April we were confident that we could handle the very demanding joint operation which followed. Throughout this period the JCS/EUCOM interface was excellent at all levels. This included face-to-face liaison at staff and command levels, including discussions between SecDef and Adm Crowe with VADM Kelso, COMSIXTHFLT; Adm Moreau, CINCUSNAVEUR; Gen Lawson, DCINCEUR; and Gen Rogers, CINCEUR.

I will return to detailed planning in a few minutes.

We knew the following about each of the targets.

Decision to Strike

Following the Labelle Disco bombing and the clear evidence that Libya directed it, the President directed an attack against Libya's terrorist infrastructure. It was intended primarily to preempt or disrupt further Libyan operations abroad. Additionally it would signal to Libya that state-sponsored terrorism carries a high cost, would weaken Libyan conventional power projection, and encourage those opposed to the policies of the Qadhafi regime. This guidance, the objectives, and direction given to SecDef/JCS were passed to CINCEUR and his components. From this, USCINCEUR and the executing forces developed feasible military options to support the mission. These plans (options) were reviewed, modified, and revised at successive levels of command through JCS to the Secretary and the President.

~~SECRET~~

As you can see the interaction between the military and civilian leadership was continuous. At each level great care was taken to provide clear, unambiguous guidance without micro-managing commanders in the field. The chain of command was never bypassed.

Mission

Concept of Operations

[The main body of the page contains a large area of heavy black noise and artifacts, likely from a scanning process, which completely obscures any text or graphics that might have been present.]

Command and Control

The chain of command throughout Operation ELDORADO CANYON was from the Secretary of Defense through the JCS to USCINCEUR to Commander, Central Mediterranean Operations. For streamlined C³, USCINCEUR designated COMSIXTHFLT as the officer in tactical command (OTC) and Commander, Central Mediterranean Operations (COMCENTMEDOPS), to coordinate detailed joint planning/deconfliction efforts, to integrate other command/agency assets the tactical operations area, and to conduct this operation. USCINCEUR delineated the area of the CENTMED in which CONCENTMED had this authority. The EUCOM components, as the forces which would execute the strike, developed the primary, detailed plans. Further to enhance Air Force/Navy coordination, liaison officers were exchanged among the planning locations in addition to the coordination inherent in the unified staff at HQ USEJCOM.

Rules of Engagement

The following special rules of engagement for operation ELDORADO CANYON were approved. These rules are in addition to peacetime rules of engagement and those previously approved for operation ATTAIN DOCUMENT (Gulf of Sidra operations):

- Minimize collateral damage. Make every reasonable attempt to limit damage to other than designated military targets.
- ROE were chosen because through the iterative planning process, USCINCEUR had requested ROE that he considered necessary to conduct the mission. These recommendations were reviewed and modified throughout the planning process and finally approved by the SecDef and the President.
- We believe the ROE were appropriate.

Execution

The Libyan response from the Benina Airfield was relatively light. There were surface-to-air missiles fired, but the aircrews on that strike easily avoided the surface-to-air missiles. However, against the Benghazi

Barracks and alternate Headquarters, the anti-aircraft fire and surface-to-air missile fire was very intense. Against the Sidi Bilal Terrorist Facility, the Libyan response was fairly light. Against Aziziyah Barracks and Headquarters, the Libyan response was very heavy. Additionally, flares were fired into the air; apparently an attempt by the Libyans to illuminate the sky to aid their anti-aircraft fire. Against the Tripoli Military Airport, they had light to moderate AAA and surface-to-air missile response. Of the aircraft that aborted on the western side, there were three aircraft that aborted prior to the strike against Aziziyah Barracks. One was due to an engine hot light and that aircraft later landed at Rota and was repaired and proceeded on back to Great Britain. One had an engine instrument failure; one had an afterburner failure and was not able to complete the strike. Additionally, over that target, one had a generator failure. Against the Tripoli Military Airport, one aircraft aborted with failure of his terrain-following radar. Against Benina Air Base, ²one A-6 aborted in the air. The reason for the two A-6 aborts at Benina ~~is unknown~~. At Sidi Bilal and Benghazi Barracks, all aircraft that were scheduled made their strikes. Additionally, over the Aziziyah Barracks, there was one F-111 that did not return. Whether he dropped his bombs on the target or not is not clearly known, and he apparently went down off the coast about four miles north of Tripoli.

Performance

The raid accomplished the overall assigned mission. Target results are based on a comparison of target damage as compared to the instructions given in the EXECUTE ORDER, including the desired targets and the no-strike areas.

UNIT 1

The reasons for the difference between objectives and results vary but our review suggests the following factors combined to produce a very demanding, "busy cockpit" mission:

- Sophisticated, integrated, high threat environment.
- Long flights prior to target.
- Heavy AAA and numerous SAM firings.
- Conservative interpretation of national guidance (all weapon systems fully operational) complicated mission tactics beyond the level normally encountered in combat or combat training.

Specific systems performed well within expected acceptable limits. No extraordinary preparations were made for the operation. Contingency plans had been made for additional targets but they were not selected for this mission.

The efficacy of command arrangements and effectiveness/coordination of the Air Force and Naval forces is assessed as superb. Perhaps the most telling fact is the exact on time TOT by forces based 3000 miles apart. A very complex joint strike plan successfully integrated strike and strike-support (ECM, C3CM, EW, CAP, SAR) air and naval forces. ROE were appropriate and provided the operational latitude to plan and conduct the strike in a tactically sound manner.

The aircrews, as the primary strike planners, were given the flexibility to develop attack plans and force packages. Each target area had several desired target elements (aim points). The selection of aim points and

U
[REDACTED]
U
UNCLASSIFIED

munitions was left to the crews attacking that target area. While the direction to limit collateral damage and minimize the risk to the aircrews may seem to have reduced flexibility on the target run (no alternate targets), it was the complexity of five simultaneous attacks which demanded the carefully orchestrated run-ins and attack axes.

The direction to limit collateral damage resulted in a more-difficult, more-demanding mission for the aircrews. Command elements of the executing forces interpreted the direction to limit collateral damage very conservatively. This led to requirements of redundancy in operating weapon delivery systems not specifically required by ROE or national-level guidance. Specifically, all delivery systems had to be fully operational to attack a target; additionally, there were not alternate targets to attack in case of minor system degrade in only one delivery system. The loss of systems, therefore, simply reduced the number of weapons to be delivered on the targets. There was some unplanned damage. It occurred because, as expected, not every munition dropped by our aircraft hit precisely on the intended target. In short, we missed a few. Additionally, Libyan SAMs and other non-US weapons caused damage in Tripoli to an unknown extent.

Evidence to support this view was provided by Libyan and international media television footage showing SA-2 and SA-3 SAM booster rockets (purportedly pieces of downed US aircraft) being pulled from wrecked buildings. The SA-2 booster rocket, for example, is 8.5 feet long, 3 feet in diameter, and weighs approximately 1060 lbs after fuel expenditure. Despite the self-destruct feature found on Soviet SAMs, it is not impossible that one or more of the SAM warheads may actually have exploded on impact, causing even more destruction in the immediate area. Finally, it is noted that falling shrapnel from conventional AAA weapons, many of which were observed active during the night of the raid, may have caused additional casualties and/or damage since AAA rounds will explode on contact with the ground if not fused.

DRAFT

The Libyan air defense system was surprised. A great deal of confusion was noted. Benina Airfield had runway lights on and radio navigation aids operating at the time of attack.

DRAFT

Lessons Learned

DRAFT

The joint planning and operations system worked well. The iterative process allowed everyone involved to understand the objectives and plan accordingly. C3 was clear and understood resulting in a successful execution.

Additionally we confirmed that our sophisticated equipment works. Without that sophistication this mission was simply undoable. ~~No other nation on earth could have done it.~~

[REDACTED]

DRAFT

The mission was accomplished despite the most severe political constraints against very tough targets.

Communications planning was thorough and complete. As a result, communications support was not a limiting factor for the operation.
