

Miguel de la Mano

Miguel de la Mano joined the Commission in 2001 and is currently a member of the Chief Competition Economist Team. He carries out economic analysis of mergers and commercial practices by dominant companies and their impact on the competitive structure of markets. He is also responsible for drafting guidelines setting out the Commission's analytical framework in these areas. He completed graduate studies in economics at the Institute for World Economics in Kiel, Germany, and the European Institute at Saarbrücken University, Germany. He conducted his PhD research at Oxford University, UK.