

Correct Usage and Credits for Artwork Images

A full list of the approved credits for all Picturing America images is included in this document. When using artwork images within the context of print, broadcast or online media about Picturing America, please follow these guidelines:

1) Be sure to give appropriate credit to the artist and image holder for all images used. If the name of the image and the artist is included in the text, those elements do not need to be duplicated in the credit line.

For example, if the image of The Midnight Ride of Paul Revere is used, and not cited in the text, the full credit line near the image should read:

“Grant Wood (American, 1892–1942), The Midnight Ride of Paul Revere, 1931. Oil on Masonite; H. 30, W. 40 in. (76.2 x 101.6 cm): The Metropolitan Museum of Art, Arthur Hoppock Hearn Fund, 1950 (50.117) Photograph © 1988 The Metropolitan Museum of Art. Art © Estate of Grant Wood / Licensed by VAGA, New York.”

If the name of the image and the artist is used in the text of the article, an abbreviated credit line should read:

“The Metropolitan Museum of Art, Arthur Hoppock Hearn Fund, 1950 (50.117) Photograph © 1988 The Metropolitan Museum of Art. Art © Estate of Grant Wood / Licensed by VAGA, New York.”

2) There are no restrictions on the font or font size used for a credit line, provided the credit line is legible.

3) Credit lines can be positioned above, below, or to the side of the image.

4) Images may not be cropped or manipulated in any way. Images can be resized, as long as the image ratio remains the same.

5) Views of the images must be clear of any obstruction. They cannot have words or other images printed over them.
