SUMMARY

CTCNet, a national network of local community technology centers, dedicated to ensuring the availability of technology and training for underprivileged citizens, on behalf of itself and its members, hereby petitions the Commission either to deny the proposed merger and Transfer of Control Application of Nextel Communications, Inc. and Sprint Corporation, or condition any grant of such application on the divestiture of sufficient spectrum holdings and lease rights so as to ensure availability of sufficient BRS and EBS spectrum for new competitive entrants to the distinct new wireless broadband marketplace. CTCNet and its members would be directly and adversely affected by the excessive degree of market concentration that would result from this combination, the preclusion of competition in the new wireless broadband services marketplace and the combination's negative inevitable effect on prices and services.

Because the Wireless Broadband Service newly authorized for the 2.5 GHz band is portable, mobile, and promises true broadband speeds over a wide area, it is not analogous to xDSL or Cable, or even current cellular and PCS services, and is therefore a distinct market segment, which must not be rolled up by a single service provider. Contrary to the highly misleading statements and data provided by the Applicants, and as clearly demonstrated herein, the merger will create disproportionate market power and the potential for anti-competitive activity by the post merger company, which would control 100% of the available BRS spectrum in 24 major market areas located in the top 50 BTAs, and well over 70 percent of the BRS in 66% of these markets. Further, the post- merger company would control 100% of both the usable BRS and EBS spectrum in 7 major market areas located in the top 50 BTAs and well over 70% of all BRS and EBS spectrum in 62% of these markets. Thus, the post-merger company would be in a position to use its market power to foreclose the entry of any other competitive wireless broadband providers into most major market areas located in the top 50 BTAs – and hence the potential for any true service and price competition in the new wireless broadband services market segment on either a regional or national basis.

CTCNet therefore requests the Commission either deny the Application, or require the combined entity to divest sufficient ownership or control of BRS spectrum to ensure that it has control over no greater than 5 BRS channels in any Major Market located within any of the top 100 BTAs in the UBS, no more than 12 of the commercially usable channels in any Major Market located within the top 100 BTAs in the BRS and LBS band segments, and no more than 50% of the MBS channels in any Major Market located in the top 100 BTAs. Such divestiture would ensure the availability of sufficient spectrum in these markets to allow for the development of competition within the new wireless broadband services marketplace.

PETITION TO DENY OF COMMUNITY TECHNOLOGY CENTERS' NETWORK

Community Technology Centers' Network ("CTCNet"), on behalf of itself and its members, hereby submits its Petition to Deny the Application for Transfer of Control ("Application") filed on February 8, 2005, by Nextel Communications, Inc. ("Nextel") and Sprint Corporation ("Sprint") (collectively the "Applicants").<sup>1</sup> CTCNet believes that approval of the transfer of the Nextel licensed GSAs in the 2.5 GHz Band and spectrum leases to additional GSAs held by Nextel, will result in an excessive concentration of market power in the wireless broadband industry, a reduction in the potential for the availability of competitive wireless broadband services, and a resultant negative impact on the cost of such services to consumers. CTCNet therefore requests that the Commission either deny the Application, or specifically condition its grant on the divestiture of sufficient licenses or leases in the 2.5 GHz band to ensure that the combined Sprint/Nextel entity owns or leases no more than five (5) BRS channels located in the upper band segment ("UBS"), and has control through ownership, lease, letter of intent, right of first refusal or other contractual right, to no greater than 12 of the 26 commercially usable UBS or lower band segment (“LBS”) channels, in any of the urban Major Markets defined by GSAs in the top 100 BTAs in the United States.<sup>2</sup> By imposing such a condition on the grant of the Application, the Commission will ensure the availability of sufficient spectrum for new competitive entrants to the wireless broadband marketplace as is required in the public interest.

I. Introduction

CTCNet is a national non-profit organization, founded in 1990, comprised of more than one thousand local community organizations, and dedicated to improving the educational, economic, cultural and political life in their communities through technology. CTCNet provides resources, in the form of grants and technical support, as well as advocacy, to improve the quality and sustainability of community technology centers around the United States. CTCNet was founded with the understanding that in an increasingly technology-dominated society, people who are economically disadvantaged will be left further behind if they are not provided access to and training on information tools and services. CTCNet and its members are committed to providing technology tools, such as broadband Internet access and computer training, to citizens that may not otherwise have access to information technologies and services. CTCNet offers networking, capacity building, program development, and partnership opportunities as resources to enhance each affiliated center’s capacity to provide technology, communications services access and education to its community. Members of CTCNet include local community centers, community service programs or agencies, social action agencies, and alternative education programs. CTCNet uses its resources to promote the interests of community technology centers by identifying key technologies and services and promoting their cost-effective availability to these local technology centers and the underprivileged segments of the communities that they serve.

II. Standing

CTCNet, a national network of local community technology centers, is dedicated to providing the economically disadvantaged with access to communications services and technology infrastructure through its member community centers, including many in communities affected by the proposed transfer of control in the above-referenced matter.<sup>3</sup> In order to provide training and sufficient access to various wired and wireless communications services and technologies, CTCNet and its members seek to obtain equipment and services in the most cost effective means possible. Additionally, because CTCNet and its member community centers would ultimately like to see such equipment and services generally available and affordable to the underprivileged citizens they serve, they strongly support and advocate robust competition among communications service providers as a means of promoting lower cost equipment and services.

CTCNet has a specific interest in the transportable or mobile wireless broadband services that have been authorized for EBS and BRS service providers in the 2.5 GHz spectrum band.<sup>4</sup> Because many of CTCNet's community centers and the economically underprivileged people they serve are located within portions of communities not passed by traditional wired broadband services, CTCNet applauds the Commission's recent effort to ensure rapid deployment and competition in the 2.5 GHz spectrum band for the provision of such broadband services. Unfortunately, at the very moment the Commission took action to ensure the launch of a spate of new competitive wireless broadband services on this spectrum, two of the largest stake holders have sought to combine their controlling holdings, threatening to create an unhealthy level of market concentration that CTCNet believes will effectively foreclose the potential for meaningful competition in many markets, including those served by CTCNet and its members. CTCNet therefore believes that a grant of the proposed transfer of control will lead to spectrum warehousing, delays in service launches in otherwise deprived areas, and the preclusion of essential service and price competition that will have an adverse affect on the cost of any new wireless broadband service alternatives.

Section 309(d) of the Communications Act allows any "party in interest" to file a petition to deny. Such a party has been viewed as someone who is aggrieved or would be adversely affected by the outcome of the proceeding. CTCNet, its members and the people they strive to serve, would be effectively denied price competitive wireless broadband services as a result of the grant of the Application, and therefore will be directly injured if the Commission grants the Application in this proceeding. CTCNet, with offices in Washington D.C., is itself a consumer of communications services like those that are to be provided in the 2.5 GHz Band, and specifically would be able to have services provided over stations WOI93 and B461, two stations contained in the subject Application. Additionally, many CTCNet member community centers in markets with

BRS assets at issue in the proposed Application are also affected consumers of wireless broadband communications services.<sup>5</sup>

The fact that many people would be similarly adversely impacted by the transaction does not affect CTCNet's standing.<sup>6</sup> Additionally, the Commission has previously noted that the legislative history of Section 309(d)(1) makes plain Congress's unwavering goal to ensure that the Commission should consider petitions that advance interests legitimately related to the purposes of the Act.<sup>7</sup> The Act is full of references supporting the promotion of market competition in commercial communications services. Further, the Commission recently stated that one of the key spectrum management objectives that guided its adoption of new service rules for the 2.5 GHz band was "encouraging increased competition in wireless broadband through the creation of new opportunities for new entrants."<sup>8</sup> Therefore, CTCNet maintains that the grant of the proposed transfer of control, and the inevitable loss of potential wireless broadband competition in the 2.5 GHz band due to the threatened ensuing excessive degree of market concentration by the post-combination company in this proceeding, would be prima facie inconsistent with the public interest, convenience, and necessity.

<sup>5</sup> To this end, CTCNet has provided, as Exhibits 2 and 3 hereto, declarations from two CTCNet members in markets affected by the proposed merger and transfer application, stating that the proposed combination will create an entity with such high market concentration as to foreclose any potential for meaningful competition within the wireless broadband services market. Each entity concludes that it will therefore be directly and adversely affected by the resultant negative impact of such a lack of competition on wireless broadband service prices in its market.

III. The Transaction as Presently Proposed Will Not Serve the Public Interest.

A. The Wireless Broadband Industry is a New and Distinct Service Which will Have a Growing Importance in an Increasingly Mobile Society

While the Commission has touted the potential of the 2.5 GHz band as an opportunity to “provide competition to cable and digital subscriber line (DSL) services,” it also noted that there is an increasing demand for purely mobile or transportable data services.<sup>9</sup> In its recent Report & Order in Docket 03-66, the Commission noted that mobile Internet use grew by four hundred percent between 2000 and 2001 to near ten million.<sup>10</sup> Wireless Broadband is not the same service as xDSL, cable modem or any other wireless service. The EBS-BRS spectrum that may be further concentrated by the post merger company in this proceeding, if this Application is granted, is slated to be used to provide a new generation of broadband data services that will be fully portable and/or mobile, and will not be restricted by a subscriber’s physical geographic location within a service area. This is separate and distinct from anything that has ever existed in the telecommunications marketplace.

Wireless services that have been offered in connection with cellular or PCS telephone services to date are not broadband, as their data transmission speeds and capacities have approximated those available over wireline dial up connections.<sup>11</sup> These cannot be considered the same market for portable and mobile wireless broadband services as will be made available if EBS-BRS spectrum is developed for new wireless broadband uses. Similarly, xDSL and cable modem type broadband data services cannot be considered the same market as EBS or xDSL because of the significant availability limitation of these services, including general geographic limitations related to the subscribers in the market area that may actually receive the service (e.g., distance from central office, or cable plant restrictions), as well as the absolute limitations on a subscriber's ability to be connected outside a wired local area network. The development of WiFi technology services has to some extent provided xDSL or cable modem subscribers with slightly more portability around a wired local area network, but the growth of WiFi as a truly ubiquitous mobile or transportable service is severely handicapped by strict limitations associated with its shared spectrum architecture and short range capabilities. The Commission's recent rule changes regarding the 2.5 GHz band will give wireless broadband operators their first opportunity to construct nationwide or regional portable or mobile service networks on dedicated spectrum with service levels at true broadband speeds, if sufficient spectrum is available. Allowing any one operator to lock up the majority of usable EBS-BRS spectrum in the major market areas located within the top 100 U.S. BTAs in this new and distinct telecommunications market segment will create an entity with disproportionate market power and an incentive to stifle the potential for true competition within the fledgling wireless broadband service marketplace.

<sup>11</sup> A review of current plan offerings by the major PCS and Cellular providers confirmed that current data speeds on their networks remain slightly higher than dial up, but well below current broadband speeds.

B. Positions Taken By the Applicants Regarding The Level Of Control That Will be Exerted By The Combined Entity Post Merger are Highly Misleading.

The Application attempts to make a case for the merger of these entities by arguing that the portfolios of spectrum in the 2.5 GHz Band and related spectrum leases held by the two companies are largely complimentary, that the resulting entity would not hold sufficient spectrum in its markets to create disproportionate market power and that competitors would not be barred entry to these markets. However, the arguments and data advanced in the Application to arrive at this conclusion are highly misleading.

This Application, in which the applicants are seeking a transfer of control of one thousand four hundred and sixty four (1,464) licenses, makes numerous claims regarding the configuration of the 2.5 MHz band and authorized services, the overall amount of available spectrum, the nature of the holdings at issue, and the resultant holdings of a combined company – many of which appear misleading and to be an attempt to distract the Commission from evaluating this potential market concentration on the proper basis. Many of these claims are supported by a confusing spectrum holdings analysis chart, as well as a joint declaration of vice presidents of each of the two companies with direct oversight responsibility for each company’s 2.5 GHz licensed and leased spectrum holdings (“Joint Declaration”). Through a careful weave of statements, the Application attempts to create an image that this gigantic merger between two multi-billion dollar companies, and the two largest stakeholders in the 2.5GHz band, would have almost no effect whatsoever on the potential competition that must be created within the fledgling wireless broadband industry. Such a conclusion based on the Applicant’s claims is incorrect and misleading for many reasons.

First, the Applicants rely on an evaluation of each company's holdings based on Rand McNally Basic Trading Areas ("BTA"), a formula and analysis never used in the historical EBS-BRS spectrum for evaluating the overall market. While this may be a convenient way of looking at spectrum holdings around the country on other spectrum bands that were awarded at their onset by BTAs at auction, BRS and EBS stations were almost exclusively awarded since the creation of the band on a site-by-site basis.<sup>12</sup> All licensed stations were recently granted the right to a distinct Geographic Service Area ("GSA"), based on its earlier 35 mile Protected Service Area ("PSA") with truncations to resolve certain overlap issues.<sup>13</sup> Rand McNally-defined BTA authorizations<sup>14</sup> as used in the BRS and EBS spectrum have been extremely limited and were only awarded in the Commission's 1996 Auction #6, for service on commercial BRS spectrum capacity in those very limited areas within the 493 BTAs that were either not already site licensed during the previous 20 years or for which a site license application was not already pending.<sup>15</sup> No BTA authorizations have ever been awarded on EBS frequencies, and it is far from certain that they ever will be.<sup>16</sup>

Second, the Commission's former and new rules rely on a completely different method than BTAs for determining service areas in which licensees are authorized to provide services. The traditional regime, PSA, has recently been slightly modified so that the new rules now necessitate that each respective EBS-BRS licensee be permitted to provide services in only their distinct GSA. With few exceptions, nearly all of the EBS-BRS spectrum licensed in and around the 50 largest Rand McNally “BTAs” has been traditionally licensed on a site-by-site basis, for which the most populated areas within these BTAs are covered by GSAs. Exhibit 4 hereto details the 50 largest Rand McNally BTAs by rank and includes all of the major market area EBS and BRS licensed GSAs (“Major Market”) located within those BTAs. These Major Markets constitute the traditionally site-by-site licensed EBS-BRS spectrum that covers the vast majority of population within the Major Market covered by the BTA and, most important, the vast majority of the EBS-BRS spectrum that could be (and is already) licensed within the BTA. Any analysis of any entity’s EBS-BRS holdings must primarily be focused on the number of GSA channels it controls within a given Major Market and not every megahertz pop within a BTA.

<sup>12</sup> In Second Order on Reconsideration in Gen Docket 90-54, released June 21, 1995, 10 FCC Rcd 7074, at ¶ 19., the Commission extended the site based licensing scheme to provide licensees with a 35 mile protected service area ("PSA") for each license.

<sup>16</sup> Although the FCC is currently considering auctioning unlicensed EBS spectrum based on larger MEAs, no such auctions have been held and so such spectrum and served populations remain unavailable to any party at this time. See Report & Order, 19 FCC Rcd 14165 at ¶ 266.

Third, because there are no current EBS BTA authorizations, the Applicants’ attempt to quantify their proportional holdings by comparing their holdings (measured mostly in MHZ x GSA-covered population) proportionally against markets (measured as all EBS and BRS MHZ x BTA-covered population) is exceedingly misleading. Inclusion of currently unavailable EBS spectrum to that actually available in any given market artificially and misleadingly reduces the apparent relative size of the Applicants’ actual spectrum holdings. Simply stated, by artificially and systematically inflating the denominator, the calculation of their percentage holdings in any given market appears smaller, and thus less significant in a market power analysis.<sup>17</sup>

Fourth, in one section of the Application, the Applicants go out of their way to claim that 62% of all spectrum in the band cannot be commercially licensed – the EBS spectrum - but must be leased from educational EBS licensees, who may not elect to lease out any of their excess capacity.<sup>18</sup> The Applicants also point out that EBS licensees that lease spectrum are required by regulation to retain a portion of that capacity for satisfying their formal educational mandate, which they may elect to satisfy through the continued provision of traditional video, rather than broadband services.<sup>19</sup> But in the actual analysis of the percentage of their post-combination market holdings and the resultant availability of spectrum for additional competitive broadband service providers in the marketplace, the Applicants do consider spectrum under EBS leases as spectrum available to them, and include these holdings, as well as their BRS holdings in the evaluation they make against all allegedly available spectrum. Further, the Applicants

<sup>17</sup> In fact, the Applicants may also be systematically reducing the size of the numerator as well. In the FNPRM in WT Docket 03-66, Sprint has taken the position that as a commercial BTA holder, it should be afforded an exclusive last chance right to license any unused EBS spectrum prior to an EBS white space auction under the old “wireless cable exception” now contained within Section 27.1201 of the Commission’s Rules (a position opposed by most EBS commenters). So if spectrum and populations in EBS white space were to be considered at all, the Applicants in markets where they hold commercial BTA authorizations should have counted all unlicensed EBS Spectrum in a BTA as part of their exclusive holdings. This would have greatly increased the size of the reported holdings in comparison to market spectrum availability. See Reply Comments of Sprint Corporation in WT Docket 03-66, filed February 8, 2005, at p. 16. It is also unclear from the Application whether the Applicants are attributing to themselves the full pops for the BTA for each commercial channel less any pops in GSAs within the BTA that they do not control. CTCNet wants to make certain that the Applicants are fully reporting all of their rights to exclusively license spectrum and not simply spectrum for which they hold current authorizations.

<sup>18</sup> This raises a very real possibility that in markets where the Applicants report that they hold or lease substantially all of the available BRS spectrum, and lease some portion of the currently licensed EBS spectrum, that in fact they control all spectrum that is available to any commercial operator within that market. As the Applicants acknowledge, the licensees of any currently unleased EBS spectrum in such markets may simply be unwilling to lease to any commercial operator.

include in the universe of allegedly available spectrum against which they measure their combined holdings, not only all of the potentially unavailable existing EBS licensed stations, but also currently unavailable EBS White Space spectrum. Thus, on one hand, they argue that there is significant EBS spectrum that may not be able to be used, but on the other hand they are claiming in their actual analysis that such EBS spectrum would be completely available for all competitors. If the Applicant's want to minimize the impact of leased EBS spectrum in their analysis of the effect of their combined holdings on market competition, they should simply ask the Commission to only review this combination based on the post-combination concentration of their BRS holdings alone.

Fifth, the Applicants don't provide any information regarding existing rights of first refusal, letters of intent or other contractual rights they hold with respect to the leasing of excess EBS or BRS capacity within individual Major Markets. While such rights may or may not actually be part of current valid leases, they do afford special rights to the Applicants to increase their spectrum holdings and to potentially preclude the availability to competitors of any spectrum that is subjected to these obligations. Additionally, while the Applicants claim they must renegotiate many leases for broadband rather than video uses, they do not explain whether such leases are subject to exclusive negotiations, contain arbitration clauses or other renewal obligations, or whether a failure to reach accord would free up lessors and make this spectrum available to be leased or acquired by competitors.<sup>20</sup>

<sup>20</sup> It is quite possible that failing to obtain flexible use rights in any renegotiation of such a videocentric lease, the combined merged entity would simply preserve the unusable lease with its present limitations for the sole purpose of ensuring that such spectrum remains unavailable to potential competitors.

The Applicants' analysis based on BTAs obscures the concentration of spectrum that the merged companies will hold in the Major Markets located within the 50 largest U.S. BTAs, and is misleading to the Commission with respect to the correct method under which this post-merger entity's combined holdings must be evaluated from an antitrust and public interest standpoint. To build a viable, competitive service, a competitor must have access to Major Markets. Any suggestion in this analysis that ample spectrum remains for competitors in outlying rural areas or in secondary or tertiary markets does not demonstrate that the merger will not create excessive market power, or that any competitor would be able to launch any viable regional (let alone national) competitive service using the available remaining spectrum. Accordingly, the proper method by which to evaluate the concentration of the Applicants' holdings would be on the basis of their actual licensed and leased GSAs, in both the EBS and BRS bands, located in the Major Markets within the top 50 U.S. BTAs, as analyzed by CTCNet below.

C. The Proposed Merger will Create Disproportionate Market Power in the Post-Merger Company Creating the Potential for Serious Anti-Competitive Activity.

1. The Merged Entity Will Hold the Bulk of The Available Spectrum in Licensed Major Market GSAs in the Top 50 U.S. BTAs.

As discussed above, the Applicants have provided the Commission with an artificial and warped view of the degree of control that the merged company will hold within the 2.5 GHz band and, consequently, within the wireless broadband marketplace. Through use of BTAs, a geographic measurement unit that does not accurately reflect their holdings or influence (or the Commission's current EBS-BRS rules) the Applicants' have attempted to minimize the apparent impact of the merger. As previously stated, the bulk of the licenses in the 2.5 GHz band were awarded by the Commission on a site-by-site basis and have only recently been converted to geographic licenses, based on their traditional 35 mile PSA with reductions for overlaps. Most of the service areas leased or acquired by the Applicants center on major urban population centers located within the Rand McNally defined basic trading areas. The reason for the Applicants' attempt to minimize their control of such Major Markets by lumping them into larger more open geographic regions is self-evident and self-serving.

Because the licenses are issued by GSA, are held by GSA, were assembled and collocated on the basis of GSAs, the Commission must assess their aggregation and the effect of any concentration based on GSAs. For the purpose of its analysis, CTCNet properly examined the actual EBS and BRS GSA holdings of the Applicants serving the urban Major Markets of the top 50 U.S. BTAs. This data can be found at Exhibit 4 hereto.

CTCNet's analysis reveals that the post-merger entity would control more than 50% of all BRS GSAs covering the Major Markets in 40 out of the top 50 BTAs (it should be noted that Major Market GSAs in five of the 50 BTAs are primarily controlled by BellSouth). The combined entity would control more than 70% of the BRS GSA Major Markets in 33 of the Major Markets; over 80% in 30 of the Major Markets; over 90% in 28 of the markets; and 100% in 24 GSA Major Markets of the largest 50 BTAs. Based on these factors, it is very apparent the resulting company would be in a position to use its market power to effectively deny any competitor access to any significant amount of commercial spectrum in over 66% of the top 50 markets.<sup>21</sup> The following diagram represents the total amount of actual licensed BRS GSAs the Applicants would control post-combination and the spectrum that would remain available for competitors in the GSA Major Markets located within the 50 largest BTAs following the combination.<sup>22</sup>

Our analysis also demonstrates that the merged company would control over 50% of the Major Market GSAs for all commercially usable 2.5 GHz spectrum (including leased EBS spectrum) in 38 of the top 50 BTAs. The combined entity would hold over 70% of such spectrum in 31 of the Major Markets; over 80% in 24 of the Major Markets; over 90% in 11 of the Major Markets; and 100% in 7 of the Major Markets. These factors again demonstrate the resulting company would be in a position to use its market

<sup>21</sup> It should also be noted that if this analysis were performed on the GSA Markets in the top 40 BTAs only, the concentration levels for the post merger combined entity would be even higher, since their combined holdings in the Market Areas within BTAs 41-50 is less. See Exhibit 4..

<sup>22</sup> The market numbering in the following chart does not directly correspond to BTA rank of the specific Market Area evaluated, but is provided to illustrate the total percentage of BRS GSAs licensed in the Market Areas located within the 50 largest BTAs that the combined company would control. The full Chart, including specific Market Area names per BTA is provided as Exhibit 5 hereto.

power to effectively deny any competitor access to any significant amount of 2.5 GHz spectrum in 62% of the top 50 markets, and any access whatsoever in 7 of those markets. The following diagram represents the total amount of actual licensed BRS and EBS GSAs the Applicants would control post-combination and the spectrum would remain available for competitors in the Major Markets located within the 50 largest BTAs following the combination.<sup>23</sup>

2. The Grant of the Application Will Foreclose the Entry of Other Competitive Wireless Broadband Providers.

Section 310(d) of the Communications Act requires the Commission to determine that a proposed transfer of control of a company holding radio licenses would serve the public interest, convenience and necessity.<sup>24</sup> As part of that analysis, the Commission must carefully consider the potential antitrust consequences of a proposed merger in conjunction with other public interest factors.<sup>25</sup> This review is required to consider such factors as the potential effects of a merger on competition and how consumers will be affected thereby.<sup>26</sup> As discussed above, the proposed combination of Sprint and Nextel's holdings in the 2.5 GHz band would create a post-merger company with highly concentrated market holdings within the major urban areas located in the top fifty U.S. BTAs, and thus a post-merger entity with disproportionate market power in the fledgling wireless broadband industry. Such extreme spectrum concentration and market power would inevitably create an anti-competitive environment that would result in the preclusion of competition and have a negative impact on the availability of services and competitive prices to consumers for new wireless broadband.

Such preclusion of competitors appears to be an absolute certainty in 24 Major Markets where the combined company will own or lease all or nearly all commercially usable BRS and EBS spectrum in the 2.5 GHz band (or over 80%). Further, because as discussed above, the Applicants have admitted that much of the EBS spectrum may be completely unavailable for commercial use (depending on the needs of the educational licensees that hold it), the fact that the merged company would hold rights to all or substantially all of the available commercial BRS spectrum in over 30 of the top 50 U.S. BTAs will also almost certainly lead to anti-competitive behavior by the combined company.

The Applicants attempt to create a false impression that their merger will not create such undue market power because the portfolios of the two companies are largely complimentary, with the majority of holdings for each of the two companies coming from different regions of the country, and that “on a nationwide basis a majority of the [spectrum] will remain available for other carriers to use.”<sup>27</sup> However, the mere fact that in most cases the two companies are assembling spectrum portfolios from different markets does not mean that their combination will not result in the creation of disproportionate market power. While two large stakeholders may each attempt to launch competitive national services where each is in a position to serve a sizeable number of Major Markets within the United States, combining these holdings within a single company in such a way as to deny any other competitor significant access to Major Markets located in 30 of the top 50 U.S. Major Market BTAs would essentially foreclose the possibility of any true competition on a national level, preclude it in most regions – and completely preclude competition in numerous Major Markets. The fact that spectrum in outlying rural areas may remain available for competitors would not allow these competitors any true competitive access to the Applicants’ markets, much less a viable shot at creating a national or regional competitive service.<sup>28</sup>

3. Operators no Longer need Substantially all of the Available Spectrum to Offer Competitive Low Power Cellularized Broadband Service

The aggregation of spectrum within markets began at a time when the spectrum was being used for commercial wireless video services. At that time, in order to provide a level of service that was competitive with the offerings of local wired cable television services, wireless operators sought to aggregate, through purchase or lease, all available channels within the service band. While operators were free to own or lease commercial BRS spectrum (then MDS), they were only allowed to lease certain excess capacity of educational EBS (then ITFS) licensees. As technology allowed cable television to offer more and more channels at reasonable cost, wireless operators with access to a limited number of channels found that the only way to compete was through the implementation of costly digital compression. When it became apparent that this spectrum band might be usable for wireless broadband services, large corporations began buying up the local markets in an attempt to develop a national footprint for such services.<sup>29</sup> Thus, after the aggregation of legacy local wireless cable companies and channels and a successive series of acquisitions by large telecommunications companies of the resultant aggregators, the present consolidation would now place control of the bulk of available spectrum within major U.S. Major Markets in the hands of a single entity.

However, most operators today would likely acknowledge no single operator requires all 33 channels within a given market to provide a viable wireless broadband service. In fact Sprint and Nextel, individually and through the Wireless Communications Association International, an industry group representing commercial operators in the 2.5 GHz band, have lobbied for relatively lax safe harbors for EBS substantial service showings at renewal time, essentially allowing unused stations to obtain renewals based solely on their association with existing market systems.<sup>30</sup> Such a position reflects an expectation by Sprint and Nextel that they would not have need for all their licensed and leased BRS and EBS spectrum in the 2.5 GHz Band.<sup>31</sup> Nonetheless, while the Applicants acknowledge that many elements of their business plan remain under development, they still attempt to create a case for the grant of this unnecessary and unprecedented aggregation of spectrum in the 2.5 GHz band. While the Applicants post combination need for so much spectrum remains unexplained, it is clear their past record of actual usage of such large spectrum holdings was inadequate. For example, Nextel discloses that of the 1,464 commercial BRS authorizations to be transferred only 412 (or 28%) are constructed.<sup>32</sup>

<sup>28</sup> Certainly, in order to have any real chance to create a successful competitor to the combined Sprint-Nextel, any potential competitor must be able to achieve the economies of scale that would result from of a national or regional build out.

<sup>29</sup> A summary of some of these transactions can be found on the National ITFS Association website at http://itfs.org/articles/recent\_transactions.htm

While the Applicants attempt to create the impression that they have a bold and unique plan for the spectrum that will require the combined holdings of the two companies, these claims have no basis in fact or reality. The Applicants' throw around such terms as "intuitive user service" and "wireless interactive multimedia service", while admitting that their services will likely be "data-centric focused," but refusing to refer to them simply as "Broadband".<sup>33</sup> Without specifics as to their actual spectrum requirements, the Applicants' state they will have to "develop innovative, technically sophisticated uses of the spectrum that differ from the types of services offered in lower-frequency bands.”<sup>34</sup> At a minimum, the Applicants should be required to detail and rationalize their specific plans for usage of whatever spectrum will result in the post combination entity.

4. The Commission Should Condition a Grant of the Application on Spectrum Divestitures in the 2.5 GHz Band in Order to Ensure Competition in the Wireless Broadband Services Industry.

In light of the significant concentration of spectrum rights that would occur if this Application were granted, CTCNet requests that the merged entity be required to divest itself of the control of sufficient BRS and EBS spectrum, so as to ensure the potential for meaningful competition within the wireless broadband industry in each of the urban Major Markets defined by GSAs in the top 100 BTAs. Because as the Applicants themselves admit, leased EBS spectrum may not be an alternative in certain markets, the Commission should require the combined entity to divest itself of sufficient ownership or control of BRS spectrum to ensure that it has control over no greater than five (5) BRS channels located in the upper band segment (“UBS”), and no greater than a total of 12 of the 26 commercially usable UBS and lower band segment (“LBS”) channels, in any of the urban Major Markets defined by GSAs in the largest 100 BTAs within the United States<sup>35</sup> Further, in no case should the Commission permit the post combination entity to control more than 50% of the total amount of mid band segment Channels in any of the urban Major Markets defined by GSAs in the top 100 BTAs.

<sup>35</sup> Control should be deemed to include ownership, lease, right of first refusal, letter of intent, non-compete, or any other form of option to use the spectrum or preclude others from using it.

IV. Conclusion

Accordingly, for the foregoing reasons, CTCNet respectfully requests that the Application and proposed merger be denied or conditioned on a requirement that the post merger entity divest itself of sufficient spectrum in the 2.5 GHz band to ensure the availability of adequate spectrum for competitive broadband operators within the urban Market Areas defined by GSAs in the largest 100 BTAs in the United States.

DECLARATION OF YMCA OF SAN DIEGO COUNTY

I, Cesar Marcano, this 25th day of March 2005, hereby declare as follows:

1. I am the Program Director of the Cyber Y Technology Center, a program of the YMCA of San Diego County,
2. YMCA of San Diego County is a community service organization located in San Diego, California.
3. YMCA of San Diego County is a member of CTCNet.
4. YMCA of San Diego County, as a member of CTCNet is dedicated to providing access and technology training for the economically disadvantaged members of its community.
5. Such technologies include Internet and other broadband services increasingly available to the general population.
6. YMCA of San Diego County has been anxiously awaiting the availability of wireless Broadband services soon to be available over the 2.5 GHz Band.
7. YMCA of San Diego County believes that the proposed merger of Nextel Communications Inc. and Sprint Corporation, and the related transfer of control of assets held by Nextel in the 2.5GHz Band will yield a single potential provider instead of two, and thus will foreclose the availability of sufficient spectrum in this band for any other company to provide price competitive wireless broadband services in our area.
8. In the absence of direct competition, YMCA of San Diego County believes that the combined entity will have less pressure to keep wireless broadband prices low. Therefore, the transfer of control will create a company with disproportionate market power and will have a negative affect on the price in the wireless broadband services in our market.
9. For these reasons and those set forth in the attached CTCNet Petition to Deny, YMCA of San Diego County as a consumer of such communications services will be directly and adversely impacted by a grant of the proposed merger and the related transfer of control of Nextel's 2.5GHz Spectrum to Sprint.

Under the penalty of perjury, the foregoing statements are true and correct to the best of my knowledge information and belief.
