Dear FCC:

To whom it may concern,

I have been a sirius subscriber for two years now, and the entire time, I have enjoyed superior programing to FM and AM radio. When I learned of the prospect of Sirius and XM merging, I became quite excited. I am a fan of the programing on both services, but I don't want to have an array of devices on my dashboard. If the proposed merger is granted, than my personal problem is solved. My personal needs aside, I also feel that this merger will be better for the radio industry as a whole. With one service offering the best of digital programing, the FM and AM markets, as well as Digital media players, are forced to offer more content to their customers. The claims of the NAB that the merger would creat a monopoly are outragous. The simple fact is, that when I am listening to my Sirius radio, I am not listening to my FM radio, AM radio, iPod, or any other media device. No one can deny that that is the essence of compitition.

Please take into consideration my (and a majority of Sirius subscribers) concerns about this merger, and allow it to happen. The radio listening public will benifit in the long run.

Sincerely,

David W. Carmichael Jr.
