To whom it may concern.

The recent inquiry into credit card practices is long been over due. As an immigrant, it with disgust I look at the american consumer market of what used to be a really reasonable business role model, has sharpy turned into a "corporation gets all and consumer gets nothing". This is largely due to the fact that no one is really monitoring practices of these business, but since reading about the changes about to be imposed, I am really appreciative of that effort....thanks for looking out for the already stressed american public.

Sincerely,
