

Project Description: NA03NMF4270124

Investigators proposed to create an effective metal adsorbent material from modified chitosan derived from crustacean shell waste. This high value product will have improved uptake, specificity for toxic heavy metals, and flow characteristics compared to other chitosan-based adsorbents as well as other commonly used commercial available adsorbent materials.