

I write to encourage continuing the ban on cellphone use on aircraft. Allowing cellphone use during flights will likely create a noisy and unpleasant atmosphere. Loud, oblivious, and/or rude cellphone users in close quarters will quite likely engender conflicts with their neighbors and may create tense and/or dangerous situations. Flight crews are already busy enough, there is no need for them to have further distractions handling such disputes.