

Ladies and Gentlemen of the FCC:

I have been closely following the complete lack of proceedings regarding the Sirius/XM merger. I have many concerns, not about the merger, but about your collective total impotence.

As this “process” originally failed to start, I thought perhaps the FCC was a make work program for the mentally deficient. I mean after all, the merger was proposed, but you couldn’t figure out how to start a clock that is evidently your own device. As the “process” dragged, I realized that it was a terrible disservice to those who suffer with retardation to group you into their lot. They have enough trouble without being saddled with muttonheads like you.

This because I had become convinced with time that you were a government sponsored incarceration program for dangerously insane people. After all, it’s not just the slow torture being suffered by retail investors in these companies (who by the way are “consumers”). Nor is it the equal torture of the customers and potential customers of these services (who are more obviously consumers...obvious to me at least...don’t know about you). To view this so shallowly would be to only expose you as incompetent dunderheads. What makes you dangerously insane is the way you have invited every type of despicable person and organization to participate in their own sick form of torture (of these consumers). Those who manipulate markets have had an open playground to legally and illegally sack these companies. A “no” answer from you will now certainly mean the death of one or both of these companies at least as they exist today. If you had made a quick decision (right or wrong), both companies could be getting on with their businesses, together or apart. The other side of the playground quickly filled up with the stalking, predatory special interests like the NAB and members of congress. By allowing the remarkable sadism to proceed while the “process” didn’t, I assumed you were dangerous and insane.

Finally, I realize that you are simply criminals driven by greed and power without benefit of insanity or retardation. You are guilty of “waste, fraud and abuse” of taxpayer money and I will be reporting you to the GAO in the hopes that they will end your funding and disband your criminal club of government Mafioso’s. It doesn’t take much of a review of your past “achievements” to see that it has nothing to do with a satellite radio merger; you are completely, without bias, criminally negligent.

I will close by saying that “ignorance of the law is no excuse” and allowing crimes to go on around you without doing anything, is a crime in itself. If you don’t understand your job well enough to make these kinds of decisions quickly, then you have picked the wrong career or you are engaging in nefarious activity. If you cannot find a way to throw off the shackles of your criminal incompetence, then sponsor a conference for all FCC employees and please, everyone drink the punch. You are wasting perfectly good oxygen.

Just kidding, really...you sit on the pot for as long as you’re constipated. I actually understand that you are simply a collective of terribly stupid people.

Thank you for your “attention” in this matter,
Paul Morrison
