Foreword

Since it was established in 1930, the Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program has been the starting place for law enforcement executives, students of criminal justice, researchers, members of the media, and the public at large seeking information on crime in the Nation. With Congress's passage of the Hate Crime Statistics Act of 1990, mandating the collection of those crimes that law enforcement has determined were motivated by the offenders' bias against a race, religion, ethnicity, sexual orientation, or disability, the Program has also become a leading source of information about hate crime.

Published annually since 1992, Hate Crime Statistics is the byproduct of the joint effort between the FBI and the law enforcement agencies that identify and report hate crimes. This partnership and, ultimately, this publication serve as the cornerstone in raising the Nation's awareness about the occurrence of bias-motivated offenses. The publication has also become a statistical tool for those involved in the advocacy or the study of persons persecuted because of their inherent traits, such as the color of their skin, or the personal decisions they make, like what church they attend.

Hate Crime Statistics, 2004, chronicles 7,649 criminal incidents that law enforcement agencies reported and includes information on 9,035 offenses, 9,528 victims, and 7,145 known offenders. Eleven of the 14 tables in this publication present various information about hate crime incidents, the types of offenses committed, and some aspects of the victims and the offenders. The remaining tables contain hate crime data aggregated by state or agency type and show the parameters of participation for law enforcement agencies that contributed data to the program.

The UCR Program continually strives to supply information on crimes motivated by bias so that those interested in their occurrence will have the data they require to better understand the scope of this societal problem. With that knowledge data users can further educate their audiences—whether they are constituents, co-workers, or fellow citizens—of the seriousness of hate crimes and present possible solutions to limit or deter these acts in the future. Therefore, the FBI relies upon law enforcement to continue their participation in identifying bias-motivated crimes. In addition, readers who would like to comment on the usefulness of the information in Hate Crime Statistics or provide suggestions for improving future editions should complete the evaluation form at the back of this publication and send it by mail or facsimile to the FBI at the address or facsimile number provided.

The national Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program would like to hear from you.

The staff at the national UCR Program are continually striving to improve the publications. We would appreciate it if the primary user of this publication would complete the evaluation form at the end of this book and either mail it to us at the indicated address or fax it: (304) 625-5394.

Introduction

Background

On April 23, 1990, Congress passed the Hate Crime Statistics Act. This law required the Attorney General to collect data "about crimes that manifest evidence of prejudice based on race, religion, sexual orientation, or ethnicity." The Attorney General delegated the responsibilities of developing the procedures for implementing, collecting, and managing hate crime data to the Director of the FBI, who in turn assigned the tasks to the Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program. Under the direction of the Attorney General and with the cooperation and assistance of many local and state law enforcement agencies, the UCR Program created a hate crime data collection system to comply with the congressional mandate. The UCR Program's first publication on the subject was Hate Crime Statistics, 1990: A Resource Book, which was a compilation of hate crime data reported by 11 states that had collected them under state authority in 1990 and were willing to offer their data as a prototype. The UCR Program continued to work with agencies familiar with investigating hate crimes and collecting related information so that it could develop and implement a more uniform method of data collection on a nationwide scale. Hate Crime Statistics, 1992, presented the first data reported by law enforcement agencies across the country that participated in UCR hate crime data collection.

Lawmakers amended the Hate Crime Statistics Act to include bias against persons with disabilities by passing the Violent Crime and Law Enforcement Act of 1994 in September of that year. The FBI started gathering data for the additional bias type on January 1, 1997. Finally, the Church Arson Prevention Act, which was signed into law in July 1996, removed the sunset clause from the original statute and mandated that hate crime data collection become a permanent part of the UCR Program. (Appendix A provides the referenced legislation, as amended.)

Collection Design

The designers of the hate crime data collection program sought to capture information about the types of bias that motivate crimes, the nature of the offenses, and some information about the victims and offenders. In creating the program, the designers recognized that hate crimes are not separate, distinct crimes; instead, they are traditional offenses motivated by the offender's bias (for example, an offender assaults a victim because of a bias against the victim's race). After much consideration, the developers agreed that hate crime data could be derived by capturing the additional element of bias in those offenses already being reported to the UCR Program. Attaching the collection of hate crime statistics to the established UCR data collection procedures, they concluded, would fulfill the directives of the Hate Crime Statistics Act without placing an undue additional reporting burden on law enforcement and, in time, would develop a substantial body of data about the nature and frequency of bias crimes occurring throughout the Nation.

Participation

Law enforcement's support and participation have been the most vital factors in moving the hate crime data collection effort from concept to reality. The International Association of Chiefs of Police, the National Sheriffs' Association, the former UCR Data Providers Advisory Policy Board (which is now part of the Criminal Justice Information Services Advisory Policy Board), the International Association of Directors of Law Enforcement Standards and Training, and the Association of State UCR Programs all have endorsed the UCR Program's hate crime program. In addition to this support, thousands of law enforcement agencies nationwide make crucial contributions to the Program's success because the officers within these agencies investigate offenses, determine whether a hate crime was committed, and report the offense as a known hate crime.

In 2004, more than 17,000 city, county, tribal, state, and federal law enforcement agencies participated in the national UCR Program; some agencies reported crime data via Summary reporting and others reported via the National Incident-Based Reporting System (NIBRS). Of all participating agencies, 12,711 law enforcement agencies voluntarily submitted data to the hate crime program either through state UCR Programs or directly (agencies in non-Program states). (Appendix B of this publication provides a directory of state UCR Programs.) Those agencies that participated in the hate crime data collection program represented over 254 million inhabitants, or 86.6 percent of the Nation's population, and their jurisdictions covered 49 states and the District of Columbia. (See Table 12.) The table on the following page presents the number of agencies that participated in UCR and hate crime reporting in 2004 by population group and the population covered collectively by those agencies within each group.

Methodology

The FBI collects hate crime data regarding criminal offenses that are motivated, in whole or in part, by the offender's bias against a race, religion, sexual orientation, ethnicity or national origin, or disability and are committed against persons, property, or society. Because motivation is subjective, it is difficult to know with certainty whether a crime was the result of the offender's bias. Moreover, the presence of bias alone does not necessarily mean that a crime can be considered a hate crime. Law enforcement investigation is crucial for accurate hate crime reporting because it must reveal sufficient evidence to lead a reasonable and prudent person to conclude that the offender's actions were motivated, in whole or in part, by his or her bias. Only then can law enforcement report an incident as a hate crime.

Data Collection

The law enforcement agencies that participate in the hate crime program collect details about an offender's bias motivation associated with the following 11 offense types already being reported to the UCR Program: murder and nonnegligent manslaughter, forcible rape, aggravated assault, simple assault, and intimidation (crimes against persons); and robbery, burglary, larceny-theft, motor vehicle theft, arson, and destruction/damage/vandalism (crimes against property). The law enforcement agencies that participate in the UCR Program via the NIBRS collect data about additional offenses for crimes against persons and crimes against property, which the UCR Program publishes in Hate Crime Statistics as other. These agencies also collect hate crime data for another category called crimes against society, which includes drug or narcotic offenses, gambling offenses, prostitution offenses, and weapon law violations. Together, the offense classification other and the crime category crimes against society include 35 Group A Offenses (not listed) that are captured in the NIBRS, which also collects the previously mentioned 11 offense categories. (The Uniform Crime Reporting Handbook, NIBRS edition [1992], provides an explanation of all 46 Group A Offenses.)

The UCR Program data collection guidelines stipulate that a hate crime may involve multiple offenses, victims, and offenders within one incident; therefore, the hate crime data collection program is incident-based. In submitting data to the national UCR Program, law enforcement agencies count one offense for each victim of crimes against persons. When submitting crimes against property, however, agencies count one offense for each distinct incident, regardless of the number of victims. Likewise, law enforcement agencies submitting data through the NIBRS count one offense for each distinct incident (not victim) of crimes against society.

The UCR Program uses the minimally accepted designations for race and ethnicity as established by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and published in the Federal Register. The revised standards have five minimum categories for data on race and two categories for data on ethnicity. In complying with the published standards, the FBI uses the following racial designation in its hate crime data collection program: White; Black; American Indian/Alaskan Native; Asian/Pacific Islander; and Multiple Races, Group. The ethnic designations are Hispanic and Other Ethnicity/National Origin.

Data Reporting

Law enforcement agencies may submit hate crime data in one of three ways: via NIBRS submissions, in an electronic hate crime record layout, or on the Hate Crime Incident Report and the Quarterly Hate Crime Report forms. The media on which the state UCR Programs may forward hate crime data to the FBI include, but are not limited to, magnetic cartridges, disks, electronic record layouts sent via e-mail, and paper forms.

Most agencies reporting data electronically to the FBI via the NIBRS use a data element within their reporting software that indicates the incident involved a bias motivation. Because the data element applies to all 46 Group A Offenses, it enables agencies to indicate whether any of the 35 additional offenses were bias motivated. Furthermore, these agencies can report considerably more information about the hate crime incident because the NIBRS is an incident-based, comprehensive data collection system. Though the additional data are not maintained in the hate crime database, they are available in the NIBRS master files.

Law enforcement agencies that prefer electronic submissions but do not report via the NIBRS may use the hate crime record layout specified in the publication Hate Crime Magnetic Media Specifications for Tapes & Diskettes (January 1997). As long as they have the FBI's approval, agencies may use any of the previously mentioned electronic media to submit the data.

Agencies that use the Hate Crime Incident Report and the Quarterly Hate Crime Report forms capture the following information about each hate crime incident: the offense type and its respective bias motivation, the number and type of victims, the location of the incident, the number of known offenders, and the known offender's race. During a calendar quarter, law enforcement agencies submit a Hate Crime Incident Report for each bias-motivated incident. At the end of each calendar quarter, agencies submit a Quarterly Hate Crime Report summarizing the total number of incidents reported for the quarter. On this form, agencies may also delete any previously reported incidents that were determined through subsequent investigation not to be bias-motivated. If no hate crime incidents occurred in their jurisdictions that quarter, the agencies must still submit the Quarterly Hate Crime Report to report zero hate crime incidents.

Notes

- When examining the data contained in this report, data users should be aware that the first line following each table number presents in boldface type that table's unit of count: incident, offense, victim, or known offender.
- To be included in this publication, law enforcement agencies must have submitted hate crime data for at least 1 month of the calendar year. The published data, therefore, do not necessarily represent reports from each participating agency for 12 months or 4 quarters. Section II furnishes individual state and agency information, including the number of quarters for which each agency reported data to the FBI.
- Based on the revised standards from the OMB for defining Metropolitan Statistical Areas, the UCR Program now refers to suburban counties as metropolitan counties and rural counties as nonmetropolitan counties.
- Valid assessments about crime, including hate crime, are possible only with careful study and analysis of the various unique conditions affecting each local law enforcement jurisdiction. (The article "Crime Factors" in the beginning of each edition of Crime in the United States [accessible at the FBI's Internet site at www.fbi.gov/ucr/ucr.htm] presents a comprehensive discussion of the many factors that affect crime in a jurisdiction.) Therefore, the reader is cautioned against making simplistic comparisons between the statistical data of this program with that of others with differing methodologies or even comparing individual reporting units solely on the basis of their agency type.

Section I—Hate Crime Statistics, 2004

The hate crime data in this book comprise a subset of information that law enforcement agencies submit to the UCR Program. The types of hate crimes reported to the Program involve biases based on race, religion, sexual orientation, ethnicity or national origin, and disability. Each type of bias is further broken down into more specific categories. For example, when a law enforcement agency determines that a hate crime was committed because of bias against an individual's race, the agency may then classify the bias as anti-white, anti-black, anti-American Indian or Alaskan Native, anti-Asian or Pacific Islander, or anti-multiple races, group.

The UCR Program collects data about both single-bias and multiple-bias hate crimes. For each offense type, law enforcement must indicate one bias motivation. A single-bias incident occurs when one or more offense types within the incident are motivated by the same bias. A multiple-bias incident occurs when more than one offense type occurs in the incident and at least two offense types are motivated by a different bias. For each single- or multiple-bias incident, the Program captures the following data: offense type, location, bias motivation, victim type, number of victims, number of offenders, and the race of the known offender(s). The UCR data on hate crime can reflect not only multiple offense types within a single hate crime incident, but also multiple victims and offenders.

During 2004, over 17,000 law enforcement agencies nationwide participated in the UCR Program. Of these agencies, 12,711 (72.6 percent) submitted 1 to 12 months of hate crime reports, from which the following statistics are derived. (See the table at the end of the Introduction.)

Incidents and Offenses

In 2004, 2,046 agencies reported 7,649 incidents involving 9,035 offenses. There were 7,642 single-bias incidents and 7 multiple-bias incidents. (See Tables 1 and 12.) Among the single-bias incidents, racially motivated crimes accounted for 52.9 percent, religious bias accounted for 18.0 percent, bias against sexual orientation accounted for 15.7 percent, and bias against ethnicity or national origin accounted for 12.7 percent. Disability bias motivated 0.7 percent of single-bias incidents.
The 7,642 single-bias incidents reported to the UCR Program in 2004 involved 9,021 offenses; the 7 multiple-bias incidents involved 14 offenses. (Based on Table 1.)

By Crime Category

The UCR Program categorizes offenses as crimes against persons, crimes against property, and crimes against society. (See Methodology.) In 2004, law enforcement agencies reported 5,642 offenses as crimes against persons, which accounted for 62.4 percent of reported hate crimes. Agencies also reported 3,333 offenses, or 36.9 percent of the total, as crimes against property and 60 offenses, or 0.7 percent, as crimes against society. (Based on Table 2.)

By Bias Motivation

In 2004, racial bias motivated more than half (53.9 percent) of the 9,021 reported offenses within single-bias hate crime incidents; religious bias accounted for 16.4 percent; bias regarding sexual orientation, 15.6 percent; ethnicity or national origin, 13.3 percent; and disability bias, 0.8 percent.

Law enforcement agencies reported 4,863 offenses within single-bias incidents that were motivated by the offender's racial bias. Among those offenses, 67.5 percent resulted from an anti-black bias, and 20.5 percent were due to an anti-white bias. Slightly more than 5 percent (5.2) of racially motivated incidents were driven by an anti-Asian or Pacific Islander bias, 2.0 percent involved a bias against American Indian or Alaskan Native races, and 4.8 percent were directed at groups of individuals in which more than one race was represented (multiple races, group).

Of the 1,480 reported offenses within single-bias incidents that were motivated by the offender's religious bias, 67.8 percent were anti-Jewish, 13.0 percent were anti-Islamic, 3.9 percent were anti-Catholic, 2.9 percent were anti-Protestant, and 0.5 percent were anti-Atheism or Agnosticism. Bias against other (unspecified) religions accounted for 9.5 percent of the hate crime offenses motivated by religious bias, and bias against groups of individuals of varying religions (anti-multiple religions, group) accounted for 2.5 percent.

In 2004, bias against a particular sexual orientation accounted for 1,406 offenses within single-bias hate crime incidents. Law enforcement agencies reported that 60.8 percent of these offenses resulted from an anti-male homosexual bias, 21.1 percent from an anti-homosexual bias, 14.3 percent from an anti-female homosexual bias, 2.5 percent from an anti-heterosexual bias, and 1.3 percent from an anti-bisexual bias.

Law enforcement agencies classify hate crimes that are motivated by a bias against an ethnicity or national origin into one of two categories: anti-

Hispanic or anti-other ethnicity/national origin. In 2004, agencies reported 1,201 offenses within single-bias incidents motivated by the offender's bias against an ethnicity or national origin. Of these offenses, 50.9 percent were motivated by anti-Hispanic bias, and 49.1 percent were directed against other ethnicities or national origins. (Based on Table 1.)

Hate crimes that are committed because of a bias against a disability are classified as either anti-physical disability or anti-mental disability. In 2004, of the 71 offenses within single-bias incidents that were motivated by the offender's bias against a disability, 23 were due to an anti-physical disability bias; 48 offenses were committed because of an anti-mental disability bias. (See Table 1.)

By Offense Type

An analysis of the 9,035 hate crime offenses reported by law enforcement agencies in 2004 showed that intimidation accounted for 31.3 percent; destruction, damage, or vandalism comprised 31.1 percent; simple assault, 19.4 percent; and aggravated assault, 11.5 percent. Another 6.0 percent of the total number of offenses reported included murder, forcible rape, robbery, arson, burglary, larceny-theft, motor vehicle theft, and other offenses. Crimes against society accounted for 0.7 percent of hate crime offenses. (Based on Table 2.)

Law enforcement agencies reported five bias-motivated murders. Three of those murders resulted from racial bias: two anti-white and one anti-black. One of the five murders resulted from a bias against atheism or agnosticism, and one murder stemmed from a bias against homosexual individuals.

All of the four bias-motivated forcible rapes reported in 2004 stemmed from racial bias. Three were committed because of the offenders' bias against white individuals; the other was due to bias against black individuals.

In 2004, law enforcement agencies reported 112 bias-motivated robberies. Of these, 42.0 percent were committed because of bias against race; 33.0 percent, sexual-orientation bias; 20.5 percent, ethnicity or national origin bias; 3.6 percent, religious bias; and 0.9 percent, disability bias.

Of the 44 arsons that law enforcement agencies reported as bias-motivated crimes in 2004, racial bias accounted for 40.9 percent; religious bias, 31.8 percent; ethnicity or national origin bias, 15.9 percent; and sexual-orientation bias, 11.4 percent. (See Table 4.)

By Victim Type

In 2004, of the reported 9,035 hate crime offenses 5,642 offenses were crimes against persons, and 60 were crimes against society. (Based on Table 2.) By definition, these offenses were directed at individuals and society, respectively. However, crimes against property may have various types of victims. An analysis of the 3,333 crimes in this category by victim type revealed the following: 51.4 percent were directed at individuals, 10.4 percent targeted a business or financial institution, 8.1 percent were against a government or public building, and 7.6 percent were aimed at a religious organization. Agencies categorized 22.5 percent of the crimes against property as being directed toward the victim-type category other/unknown/multiple. (Based on Table 6.)

Victims

In this publication, the term victim may refer to an individual, a business, an institution, or society as a whole. Law enforcement agencies throughout the Nation reported that there were 9,528 hate crime victims of 9,035 offenses within 7,649 incidents during 2004. Of the 9,528 victims, 9,514 were involved in single-bias incidents, and 14 victims were involved in 7 multiple-bias incidents. (See Table 1.) The following is a summary of victim data as reported by participating agencies.

By Bias Motivation

An examination of the data for victims of single-bias incidents indicated that most, 53.8 percent, were victims of hate crimes that were racially motivated. In addition, 16.7 percent of hate crime victims were targets of a religious bias; 15.6 percent, a sexual-orientation bias; 13.2 percent, an ethnicity or national origin bias; and 0.8 percent, a disability bias.

Racial bias motivated crimes against 5,119 hate crime victims of single-bias incidents. Nearly 68 percent (67.9) of the victims were the object of an anti-black bias. Slightly more than 20 percent (20.1) were victims of an anti-white bias, 5.2 percent were victimized because of an anti-Asian or Pacific Islander bias, and 2.0 percent were victims due to an anti-American Indian or Alaskan native bias. Victims of anti-multiple races bias, i.e., groups in which more than one race was represented, comprised 4.9 percent of hate crime victims.

In 2004, law enforcement agencies reported that there were 1,586 victims of crimes motivated by a religious bias (single-bias incidents only). Most (67.8 percent) were victimized because of an anti-Jewish bias. An anti-Islamic bias motivated offenses against 12.7 percent of victims, and an anti-Catholic bias provoked crimes against 4.3 percent. Victims of an anti-Protestant bias made up 3.0 percent of victims of hate crimes resulting from a religious bias; other religions, 9.3 percent; and multiple religions, group, 2.5 percent. The remaining

0.4 percent of hate crime victims were targeted because of the offender's anti-Atheism or anti-Agnosticism bias.

In terms of single-bias incidents motivated by a sexual-orientation bias, law enforcement reported 1,482 victims, most of which (60.9 percent) were victims of crimes motivated by an anti-male homosexual bias. In addition, 21.2 percent of victims were targets of an anti-homosexual (male and female) bias. Slightly more than 14 percent (14.3) were victims of an anti-female homosexual bias, 2.4 percent were victimized because of an anti-heterosexual bias, and 1.2 percent were targets of an anti-bisexual bias.

Law enforcement agencies reported that 1,254 victims of single-bias incidents were targeted because of ethnicity or national origin. Of these, 51.5 percent were victimized because of an anti-Hispanic bias, and 48.5 percent were victimized because of a bias against other ethnicities or national origins. (Based on Table 1.)

In 2004, 73 victims in single-bias incidents were the object of a disability bias. Of these, 49 were victimized because of an anti-mental disability bias, and 24 were targeted because of an anti-physical disability bias. (See Table 1.)

By Offense Category

A review of the data for the 9,528 hate crime victims reported for 2004 showed that 59.2 percent were victims of crimes against persons, 40.2 percent were victims of crimes against property, and 0.6 percent were victims of crimes against society.

By Offense Type

During 2004, there were 5,642 victims of crimes against persons. Slightly more than half (50.1 percent) were victims of intimidation. Thirty-one percent were victims of simple assault, and 18.4 percent were victims of aggravated assault. Murder victims and forcible rape victims each accounted for 0.1 percent of crimes against persons. The remaining 0.3 percent were victims of other types of crimes against persons. (Based on Table 2.)

In regard to crimes against property, there were 3,826 victims. Of these, 84.2 percent were the object of destruction, damage or vandalism. Victims of larceny-theft accounted for 4.9 percent; burglary, 4.4 percent; robbery, 3.7 percent; arson, 1.5 percent; and motor vehicle theft, 0.4 percent. One percent of victims were the object of other types of property crime. (Based on Table 2.) Sixty victims were the target of crimes against society. (See Table 2.)

Offenders

In the UCR Program, the term known offender does not imply that the suspect's identity is known. Rather, the term indicates that some aspect of the suspect was identified, thus distinguishing him or her from an unknown offender. Reporting agencies specify the number of offenders and, when possible, the apparent race of the offender or offenders as a group.

Law enforcement agencies identified 7,145 known offenders in 7,649 bias-motivated incidents. (See Table 1.) Of the known offenders, 60.6 percent were white and 19.7 percent were black. Groups made up of individuals of various races (multiple races, group) accounted for 5.1 percent of known offenders. Persons whom law enforcement identified as Asian or Pacific Islanders made up 1.0 percent, and American Indian or Alaskan Natives comprised 0.7 percent of known offenders. Nearly 13 percent (12.9) of known offenders were of an unknown race. (Based on Table 9.)

In 2004, a total of 5,710 known offenders committed crimes against persons: 38.4 percent of known offenders carried out simple assault, 38.1 percent committed intimidation, and 23.0 percent committed aggravated assault.

Of the 1,711 known offenders who perpetrated a crime against property, 65.2 percent inflicted destruction, damage, or vandalism, and 14.1 percent committed robbery. In addition, 7.8 percent committed larceny-theft. Regarding crimes against society, 75 known offenders committed 60 offenses. (Based on Table 2.)

Location

Reporting agencies may specify the location of a hate crime incident as one of 25 location types. An examination of hate crime incidents reported in 2004 indicated that of the 7,649 incidents, 31.7 percent occurred in or near residences or homes, and 18.3 percent occurred on highways, roads, alleys, or streets. Nearly 12 percent (11.7) of hate crimes happened at schools or colleges; 5.6 percent took place in parking lots or garages; and 4.1 percent occurred at churches, synagogues, or temples. In addition, 11.0 percent of hate crimes took place at unspecified locations, and 17.6 percent occurred at various other locations. (Based on Table 10.)

By Bias Motivation

An examination of the 4,042 single-bias incidents spurred by a racial bias indicated that 32.7 percent of the incidents occurred at residences or homes; 20.3 percent took place on highways, roads, alleys, or streets; and 12.2 percent happened at schools or colleges.

Of the 1,374 incidents stemming from a religious bias, 26.6 percent took place at residences or homes; 17.2 percent occurred at churches, synagogues, or temples; and 13.4 percent happened at schools or colleges.

Thirty-four percent of the 1,197 single-bias incidents that were motivated by a sexual-orientation bias occurred at residences or homes. Nearly one-fourth (24.9 percent) of the incidents happened on highways, roads, alleys, or streets; and 12.5 percent occurred at schools or colleges.

Concerning the 972 hate crime incidents prompted by a bias against an ethnicity or national origin, 31.4 percent took place at residences or homes; 19.5 percent happened on highways, roads, alleys, or streets; and 7.0 percent occurred at schools or colleges. (Based on Table 10.)

Fifty-seven hate crime incidents were motivated by a disability bias: 25 occurred at residences or homes; 9 happened on highways, roads, alleys, or streets; 3 took place in convenience stores; 2 happened at schools or colleges; and 18 took place at other various or unknown locations.

With regard to the 7 hate crime incidents resulting from multiple biases, 2 occurred in parking lots or garages; 2 happened at schools or colleges; 1 took place at a church, synagogue, or temple; 1 happened at a residence or home; and 1 incident occurred at multiple locations. (See Table 10.)

[1]The actual number of incidents is 7,649. However, the column figures will not add to the total because incidents may include more than one offense type, and these are counted in each appropriate offense type category.
[2]The term victim may refer to a person, business, institution, or society as a whole.
[3]The term known offender does not imply that the identity of the suspect is known, but only that an attribute of the suspect has been identified, which distinguishes him/her from an unknown offender. The actual number of known offenders is 7,145. However, the column figures will not add to the total because some offenders are responsible for more than one offense type, and they are, therefore, counted more than once in this table.
[4]Includes additional offenses collected in the NIBRS.

Section II—Jurisdictional Hate Crime Statistics, 2004

The data in this section show aggregate state totals and individual agency breakdowns of bias-motivated incidents that law enforcement agencies reported to the UCR Program. In 2004, 12,711 agencies participated in the data-gathering effort by providing 1 to 12 months of data about bias-motivated crime. Of those agencies, 2,046 (16.1 percent) reported a total of 7,649 incidents. The remaining agencies (83.9 percent) indicated that no instances of hate crimes occurred in their jurisdictions.

Table 12 shows the following data for each state: the total number of participating agencies, the population represented, the number of agencies submitting data about hate crime incidents, and the number of incidents reported. Table 13 lists data from those agencies that reported one or more hate crime incidents. Table 14 provides a list of agencies that submitted reports indicating that no instances of hate crimes occurred.

Tables 13 and 14 present the data alphabetically by state, and each state is subdivided by agency type. Agency types include cities, universities and colleges, metropolitan counties, nonmetropolitan counties, state police agencies, other agencies, and other agencies—tribal. The data published for universities and colleges represent crime reported only by those individual university/college law enforcement agencies that contributed to the UCR Program; the tables do not include data from educational institutions that reported hate crime data through local law enforcement agencies. Tables 13 and 14 also indicate the number of quarters for which each agency contributed hate crime data to the UCR Program. The Methodology section further explains the procedures used to collect, report, and publish data for this book.

APPENDIX A—Hate Crime Statistics Act

HATE CRIME STATISTICS ACT
(AS AMENDED, 28 USC § 534)

§ "[Sec. 1.] (a) This Act may be cited as the 'Hate Crime Statistics Act.'

"(b)(1) Under the authority of section 534 of title 28, United States Code, the Attorney General shall acquire data, for each calendar year, about crimes that manifest evidence of prejudice based on race, religion, disability, sexual orientation, or ethnicity, including where appropriate the crimes of murder, non-negligent manslaughter; forcible rape; aggravated assault, simple assault, intimidation; arson; and destruction, damage or vandalism of property.

"(2) The Attorney General shall establish guidelines for the collection of such data including the necessary evidence and criteria that must be present for a finding of manifest prejudice and procedures for carrying out the purposes of this section.

"(3) Nothing in this section creates a cause of action or a right to bring an action, including an action based on discrimination due to sexual orientation. As used in this section, the term 'sexual orientation' means consensual homosexuality or heterosexuality. This subsection does not limit any existing cause of action or right to bring an action, including any action under the administrative Procedure Act or the All Writs Act [5 USCS §§ 551 et seq. or 28 USCS § 1651].

"(4) Data acquired under this section shall be used only for research or statistical purposes and may not contain any information that may reveal the identity of an individual victim of a crime.

"(5) The Attorney General shall publish an annual summary of the data acquired under this section.

"(c) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section through fiscal year 2002.

"Sec. 2. (a) Congress finds that—

"(1) the American family life is the foundation of American Society,

"(2) Federal policy should encourage the well-being, financial security, and health of the American family,
